The Four R's
Men Like Variety
The Value of Science
Lions, Alive and Dead

Current Events

ACCORDING TO modern school children, education includes four R's—"reading, writing, arithmetic and radio."

Children seem to be born with understanding of the new discoveries born with them. A boy of fifteen will manage and understand an automobile by intuition better than his father. A young child will walk up to a screeching, squawking radio, turn knobs and get music instead of the "static" produced under adult management.

AS REGARDS the nature of electricity, what it is, why it works, the youngest child knows as much as any scientist.

In a tropical forest, when travelers have passed on, leaving a fire burning, the monkeys come down, sit around, to warm their hands. They don't know what it is that warms them, and never add a stick of wood to the fire.

Civilized men sit around the mystery of electricity, like so many monkeys around a dying fire.

DR. MARIE MUNK, of Berlin, woman admitted to the German bar, says the trouble with marriage is "man's fondness for variety." It is pitiful but true that the average man will stick to one brand of cigar longer than he will stick to one wife.

According to Dr. Munk, men leave their wives for somebody younger, "for mere desire for a change." That's all true, but what of it?

INFIDELITY IS even rarer among monkeys than among men. The object of marriage is to change men from monkeys to real men, and marriage is doing the work gradually. Infidelity, at least, is not a thing to brag of and take for granted.

A REPORT of the Smithsonian Institution shows that our highly civilized government appropriates less than one-third of one per cent. of its annual budget for science and research.

Ten times that appropriation—which would be too little—would come back to the government in increased wealth a hundred times over.

How poor would this nation be without steam engines, automobiles, tractors, steel making methods, chemical knowledge of fertilizers and other "modern improvements," all born of science?

THE MEN of wealth do little for scientific research, outside of their own industrial plants. One scientific invention, getting nitrogen out of the air, at a low price, would supply cheap food, and properly used in charity, would do more for the poor and hungry than all the money given from the beginning of time.

THE ITALIAN NOBLEMAN, pointing to the beggars at his back gate, covered with sores and eating scraps of food thrown to them, said, quite seriously: "These be my hounds with which I hunt salvation."

If feeding the poor means salvation, scientific research could be made to pay dividends hereafter as well as now on earth.

PROFESSOR JEANS, leading British scientist, tells the Royal Astronomical Society that the great age to which suns are now known to live makes it quite certain that the universe and its million of planets are populated by thinking beings.

SUNS, THOUGHT to last only a few million years, when ignorance of radio active forces led to the supposition that the suns were actually burning up, are now known to last many billions of years. That gives plenty of time for planets to cool off and become habitable.

BUT WHY should hot planets or suns be uninhabitable? A maggot, looking at a living lion, would say, "That's uninhabitable." With the lion dead

HARRIS' TWO AIDES RESIGN

6 WOMEN RESCUED AT FIRE

Dorchester Patrolman Rushes Into Smoke-Filled Hallway to Aid Tenants

Six women were rescued today by Patrolman William F Finnegan as fire in the apartment block at No. 14 Lindhurst street, Dorchester, drove six families into the street.

Two alarms were sounded and firemen had a difficult fight. Burning embers showered adjoining houses, most of them wooden.

Finnegan, walking his beat, discovered smoke issuing from windows, sounded the alarm from a nearby box, and then pounded at the doors to arouse the occupants. Where the smoke was heaviest, he plunged in and assisted the women to safety.

The rescued are Miss M. E. Perry and Miss Elizabeth J. Woodward, occupants of the top floor; Mrs. Sarah Shurtleff and Miss Mary Shurtleff, on the second floor; and Mrs. E. B. Wheeler and her mother, Mrs. E. B. Wilder, on the first floor.

The building is a three-story house with three families occupying each side. Many other families in the neighborhood received a fright as flying sparks ignited nearby roofs, but firemen quickly extinguished these fires.

The fire started on the roof near the chimney and worked down. Damage was estimated at $3,000.

Two of the rescued women were taken to a physician's office by Patrolman Finnegan. The other occupants of the building were cared for by neighbors.

SEIZE FOUR IN POLICE SHOOTING

Men Hired Westland Avenue Rooms Shortly Before Holdup Occurred

Police hunting down the band of which the gunman who shot two Back Bay policemen is alleged to be a member, raided a Westland avenue house with drawn revolvers today and captured four men in bed.

The four are alleged to be members of the notorious "Guerin gang" of South Boston.

They gave their names as Steve Guerin, twenty-three, and Frank Guerin, twenty-two, of No. 8 Newman street, South Boston; Frank Polo, twenty-four, of No. 61 Crescent avenue, Dorchester, and Charles Tully, twenty-one, of No. 56 River street, Newton.

According to the police, they hired the apartment last Saturday, a few hours before the shooting, and have not been on the street since. They have done their own cooking.

PLOT REVEALED.

Coincident with the four new arrests, a plot was uncovered by the police today to free Cornelius J. Moriarty, known as "Connie the Rat," of suspicion in connection with the shooting.

A Back Bay girl is the central figure in the plot which has been nipped in the bud through clever detective work of Back Bay policemen.

Cornelius F. Moriarty, otherwise "Connie the Rat," is held under $25,000 bail charged with the shooting of Patrolmen Thomas F. McCabe and Joseph F. Condon, but the police frankly admit that their case against "The Rat" is not a strong one.

Patrolman McCabe was operated as failing today at City Hospital.

"McCabe's condition is more serious today," surgeons at the hospital said.

After a consultation, they decided to postpone operations, which were to be performed on both McCabe and Condon.

"RECOGNIZES" PHOTO

When a Back Bay girl turned up at police headquarters and announced that she was a witness to the shooting and could identify the gunman, the police were elated.

"The man who shot the two policemen after taking part in the holdup was James E. Bennett, one of the trio of desperadoes who escaped some days ago from the Everett police station," the girl told the detectives.

She described in detail what she saw of the shooting and how she instantly recognized Bennett from his pictures published at the time of the Everett escape.

Printed Form Used to Fire Harris; Name Tpyed

Judge Robert C. Harris, was "fired" as United States District Attorney at Boston by form letter, it was revealed today, just as an underling in the Federal employ learns of his release without the courtesy of the personal touch.

The President's letter to Judge Harris was a printed form, with name and designation typed in.

Although the book of etiquette does not give the "dope" as regards dismissal letters, Judge Harris observed the best Bostonese in his dignified reply and wrote it out himself.

CITY HALL ROW CAUSES STIR IN MELROSE

Out in Melrose, where they take their football and politics seriously, a nice little mayoralty stew is giving off a rich, malevolent aroma.

For the honor of laying municipal cornerstones and heading the municipal payroll at the stangering sum of $1,000 annually, Mayor Paul H. Provandie and Albert M. Tibbetts are placing their opposing cards on the table before the voters and won't-voters.

But somebody marked some of the cards or something and the Melrose mayoralty race has turned out to be what the boys that hang around the fire station describe as a "humdinger."

SECRETARY RESIGNS.

Just to open up the mystery and excitement, Miss Blanche Nickerson, of No. 74 Myrtle street, who has been a decidedly efficient secretary to five consecutive Melrose Mayors in thirteen years, has resigned as Mayor Provandie's secretary.

Then, Lieut. William T. Fahy, Melrose police inspector, has been "broken," and ordered to do uniformed patrol duty.

As a third angle, Mayor Provandie is accused by his opponents of being unwise enough to carry the cares of City Hall into a Melrose shoe shine parlor and airing them freely in the hearing of other patrons.

On one such occasion, the Mayor, who sidetracked the pills and chisels and saws of a physician to show Melrose how the Mayor's office should be run, is charged with ungallantly announcing the names

CHAOS AS STAFF IS WRECKED

Two Assistants of Dist. Attorney Resign Following Ousting of Chief

The wrecking of United States District-Attorney Robert C. Harris' office was completed today when his two leading assistants, Essex S. Abbot of Haverhill and Joseph V. Carroll, Belmont, resigned.

With District Attorney Harris, curtly removed by President Coolidge, and the two principal trial lawyers gone, the backbone of the Massachusetts district office lays shattered.

Meanwhile—through the omission of Washington to have a successor ready to step into office—the local routine was in a sad tangle, chaos reigned.

Cases partially tried were before the Federal Courts with no prosecutor to press them. Other cases, current at the finger tips of the three leading men, formed a species of cross-word puzzle for the new arrival to plot out when he should arrive.

BITTER CRITICISM.

Judge Harris' summary removal at the instigation of Mrs. Mabel W. Willebrandt, assistant to Attorney-General Stone and the "Inspired Joan of Arc" of the Washington office, generated bitter criticism of the President and the Attorney-General today by Boston barristers.

"Petticoat politics" was a term used by some in scoring the refusal of a "day in court" to Judge Harris, while others described the situation in harsher verbiage.

The following note was mailed to the President today by Judge Harris:

"I am in receipt of your order of removal from office, by the hand of Sylvester Rush, Esq., special assistant of the Attorney-General.

"In accordance with the order, I left the office at the close of business on December 3."

Girl stenographers wept as Harris made a last visit to his office to gather together private papers and other belongings.

Harris said good-bye to all his assistants and office staff. Six prominent men called at the federal building to express their regard for him.

Harris' assistants, Abbott

TEN ARE KILLED IN TWO COLLISIONS

Detroit, Dec. 4 (I.N.S.).—Five persons are dead and a score of others were recovering today from injuries received when a Toledo-bound Detroit United Railway train and motor truck collided near here.

Oakland, Cal., Dec 4 (I.N.S.).—Five persons are known to be dead, many others are reported to have been killed and scores were injured today when a Sacramento-San Francisco Railway electric train telescoped a crowded Key West ferry train. The heavy train ploughed halfway through the ferry train from the rear during a fog.

...ask who resigned today, were also against the Washington authorities for not giving Harris a chance. They criticized both Attorney-General Stone and President Coolidge for disregarding Harris and instead listening to everything told them by Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt and Anti-Saloon League of officials.

Abbott will return to private practice in Haverhill, which he left in 1921 to become principal assistant.

Carroll had been connected with the office for seventeen years, entering it as a schoolboy after passing the bar and being appointed an assistant district attorney by Daniel J. Gallagher under the Wilson administration.

The resignations of Assistants Abbott and Carroll—received at Washington in today's mail—leaves in the special office as assistants Elihu B. Stone of Boston, William J. White, Jr., of Lowell; John W. Schenck of Boston, John V. Sullivan of Middleboro, Laurence Curtis, 3d, of Boston, and Helen Buckley, office assistant.

These assistants have been concerned in the lesser affairs of the office. The brunt of the work has been carried on the shoulders of Judge Harris, Abbott and Carroll, and the last two tried, with Assistant Stone, the great majority of cases.

From various sources, president today that Judge Harris' fate was decided on long ago, but the opportune moment for tripping the trigger was awaited.

His successor is believed even to have been picked. The merry war engendered today over the mention of James M. Swift of Fall River, former Attorney-General of Massachusetts, as successor, appeared to be much too serious.

TALK OF DALLINGER.

Frederick W. Dallinger was variously unofficially today as a compromise successor in the affray. Dallinger is a consistent dry, but he is not a "drastic," and numbers among his friends a large proportion of avowed wets.

On the side of the battle line opposing Swift are the forces of the Anti-Saloon League, although Swift's name is said by Wayne B. Wheeler of that organization to have the approval of the dry organization.

In Massachusetts, however, the League is backing Edwin O. Norris of Worcester, claiming that Swift is not in sympathy with prohibition.

On the other hand, Mary E. Davis, newly appointed superintendent of the Metropolitan division of the Massachusetts Anti-Saloon League, and Mrs. Elizabeth Tilton, chairman of the women's division of the Anti-Saloon League are bitterly opposing the naming of Mr. Swift.

"DRYS" IN PROTEST.

Dry leaders whom Chief Mr. Swift lost prior to the recent election, was one of the signatories to a letter issued by the Constitutional Liberty League of Massachusetts opposing the passage of the so-called Daly Volstead act in Massachusetts.

"I cannot believe that Senator Butler and Speaker Gillett will lend themselves to support the anti-dry of Mr. Swift for this office," said Mrs. Tilton. "The Anti-Saloon League is supporting Mr. Norman of Worcester, and he should be appointed."

It is known that the dry forces have prepared a lengthy brief covering the activities of Mr. Swift as relates to prohibition, and this will be presented to the Attorney-General at Washington.

LODGE FAVORED SWIFT.

Senator Lodge was one of the strongest backers of Judge Harris, and resisted strenuously the efforts to oust him from office.

Finally, when it became evident that Mr. Harris could no longer be retained, it is said that Senator Lodge agreed to his removal and joined with the other leaders in favoring the appointment of Mr. Swift.

Senator Butler, then chairman of the Republican National Committee, is said to have concurred heartily in this appointment.

William J. White, Jr., Lowell, an assistant district attorney for the past four years, is expected to move up the line and have charge of liquor prosecutions under the incoming district attorney.

TO BE NAMED SOON.

It was about White's tenure in office that the fight against Judge Harris raged, for a time.

Judge Harris had some differences with White and finally asked Washington to relieve his assistant from office. His request received no attention in Washington and it was this fact which led Judge Harris to accuse Mrs. Mabel W. Willebrandt, Assistant Attorney-General of opening the mail of Attorney-General Stone, permitting the latter to see just those letters she desired.

Although Judge Harris completed his term in office with the end of business, yesterday, he was at his old office in the Federal Building today, removing his personal effects.

DID IT WITH HER LITTLE HATCHET

MRS. WILLEBRANDT AND VICTIMS

Mrs. Mabel W. Willebrandt, assistant United States Attorney-General, in charge of liquor law enforcement, is credited with lopping off the official head of Robert O. Harris as Federal district attorney at Boston. Her photo is shown as are those, from left to right, of Joseph Carroll, Essex Abbott and Mr. Harris. The resignations of Carroll and Abbott as assistants quickly followed the ousting of Harris.

MELROSE ROW

of his secretary and Lieutenant Fahy in the same breath.

CHARGES JEALOUSY.

A tinge of "Main street" crept into the seething situation today when Miss Nickerson declared that a little matter of an invitation to speak before the Rotary Club, inspired jealousy sufficient to precipitate all the discord.

Miss Nickerson resigned, she explained, because of unfair treatment accorded her by the Mayor.

"The office of police inspector was created by Mayor Charles H. Adams ten years ago," she said. "He felt that the department was inefficient and needed a plain clothesman to help out.

"Mr. Fahy has been a great success in the position, which he has held since it was created. But Chief of Police Kerr has been increasingly jealous of him.

"When Mayor Provandie first came into office he was a warm friend of Mr. Fahy. Later, however, this friendliness was transferred to Chief Kerr. I don't know why.

THEN CAME VACATION.

"I think his jealousy was brought to a head when Mr. Fahy was asked to speak at a meeting of the Rotary Club on his work with boys, in which he has been particularly successful."

When the Mayor's secretary went on her vacation to Andover, N. H., last Summer, the alleged jealousy broke out in a bald way, she asserted. Lieutenant Fahy chose the same boarding house.

"I have gone to this farmhouse for eight years, since my own home in Andover broke up," she explained. "Mr. Fahy happened to be there at the same time. He is often there when I am not.

"Mayor Provandie criticized me for having too much to do with the other departments at City Hall. I always made it a point to keep in touch with the other departments because I felt that as they should be all pulling together, a knowledge of such was necessary to my understanding my job in helping the Mayor.

QUITS IN DISGUST.

"But Mayor Provandie disliked my knowledge about the work of these other departments and, after criticising me to others who brought it back to me, he complained directly to me about it.

"Finally the constant criticism and the strained atmosphere of pettiness and jealousy forced me to resign. I am sorry to leave Mayor Provandie at this time. I would rather stay with him until after the campaign.

"It is not my desire to hurt him in the contest. But I got so tired of it all, that I was obliged to leave, to avert a real breakdown."

That's all there is to today's glimpse of "Main street," as laid in Melrose.

MILTON PHYSICIAN SUED AFTER OPERATION

Dr. Edward B. Ormsby of Milton was sued today for $5,000 in Superior Court at Dedham by Joseph Andazzo, who alleges that Dr. Ormsby performed an operation on his son, Antonio Bardazzo, in a neglectful and unskilful manner.

WILSON WANTS FIREARM ADS BARRED HERE

Police Head Proposes Law to Bar Periodicals Carrying Mail Order Price Lists

Recommending that newspapers, magazines and periodicals carrying firearms advertisements be barred from Massachusetts, were contained in the annual report of Police Commissioner Herbert A. Wilson to the Legislature.

The commissioner would make it a criminal offence to sell any publication in this State which contained advertisements of firearms, believing that only in this way will the influx of weapons from mail-order houses be stopped.

"Homicides and assaults with dangerous weapons have increased at an alarming rate during the year," said the Commissioner. "In my department alone since November 30 one officer has been murdered and five others murderously assaulted."

ASSAILS FRAUDS.

Th commissioner's recommendations follow those made by him last year, with which he included several bills now pending before the Legislature.

Referring to the present law covering the sale of firearms, he said that frauds are being perpetrated constantly. Although the law requires that one day elapse before a weapon can be sold, according to the commissioner they are being sold and delivered the same day.

To remedy that condition, he recommended that licenses be required to be shown in purchasing firearms, and no person with a criminal record or an alien would be granted a license.

FAKE AUCTIONS.

Touching on fake jewelry auction sales, the Commissioner stated they were increasing and under the present laws are hard to get at. He recommended that the buildings in which the sales take place be licensed, by those who grant auctioneers' licenses. He said the system worked satisfactorily in regulating liquor stores prior to the Volstead Act.

"It could readily be applied to these auction establishments," he said, "where tons of cheap bric-a-brac are dumped to be auctioned off and unloaded upon a gullible public need a protection against itself."

Holding Them Up

JOHN F. RYAN

Showing how he obeyed bandit's order when filling station was robbed.

A young bandit held up and robbed the gasoline filling station of the Federal Oil Company at No. 804 Massachusetts avenue, Roxbury, today.

Pointing a revolver at John F. Ryan, who was in charge of the station, the youth ordered him to hand over the contents of the cash register. Ryan hesitated to comply, and the gunman rifled the till himself, making away with $30.

Ryan, who lives at No. 124 Buttonwood street, Dorchester, reported the holdup to the police and gave a good description of the bandit. He was about 25 years old, Ryan said, smooth shaven, five feet six inches, 150 pounds, and wore a light overcoat and hat.

GIRL'S PLOT TO FREE 'THE RAT' IS FOILED

Told Story Implicating Everett Bandit as Man Who Shot 2 Patrolmen

"Connie the Rat" would naturally be allayed and the case against him would be dropped.

The police decided to investigate the girl's story.

After much work, they learned that at the time of the holdup and the subsequent shooting of the policemen, the volunteer witness was in another section of the city entirely, and was nowhere within sight or sound of the shooting.

Later, the police learned that the girl knew "Connie the Rat," and in fact is a distant relative of the accused youth. Her testimony was immediately discounted, but the police refused to reveal her identity.

The detectives of the entire Boston force are combing the city for a gunman the authorities believe can be definitely connected with the shooting.

JUDGE CONNELLY THRICE FAVORS ALLSTON MAN

The spirit of leniency prevailed in the case of Grover C. Nickerson of No. 1254 Commonwealth avenue, Allston, in the Brighton Court today. Nickerson was arraigned on three counts growing out of a charge of neglect brought by his wife. First Judge Connelly dismissed the original charge when the defendant proved he hadn't been working. Then Nickerson pleaded guilty to using profanity in the courtroom but the judge put the charge on file.

On the charge of assaulting Policeman Willard of the Brighton station Nickerson was found guilty but Judge Connelly suspended sentence six months in the House of Correction.

Damages of $20,000 are asked by Charles P. Draper of Milford from Arthur L. Wilson of the same town on the ground that Wilson alienated the affections of Mrs. Mary E. Draper, in a suit filed today by Draper in Superior Court at Dedham.

LEITER TOLD OF LIGHT FLASHES TO RUM SHIPS FROM MANSION

RUM RING MEMBERS HUNTED

Employe of Estate Got Answering Signal From Runners, Guards Said

Arrest of several individuals alleged to be implicated in the mysterious theft of thousands of dollars' worth of liquors from the Beverly Farms estate of Joseph Leiter, Chicago "Wheat King," are expected hourly.

Joseph W. Collins of Salem, Leiter's chauffeur, is one of the men reported sought. He is reported to be in Washington at Leiter's home on New Hampshire avenue.

HUNT RUM RING.

Members of a Boston and Gloucester rum ring from whose ranks it is reported, the thieves who stole the Leiter liquors were recruited are others sought by Federal officials.

Frank Bellucci, manager of the Holmes Automatic Burglar Alarm Company, whose watchman, Allen J. Harris of Malden, was in Salem Court charged with complicity in the larceny, submitted to the Boston American copies of telegrams exchanged between himself and Leiter concerning conditions at the estate before the robberies.

Bellucci's wife to Leiter reads:

WIRE TO LEITER.

"Boston, Nov. 7, 1924.

"Joseph Leiter,

"No. 21 E. Van Buren St.,

"Chicago.

"When we undertook to protect your premises and property we did not know ——— had the authority to take goods out of your vault. He has cut burglar alarm wires so alarm would not ring and last Thursday took five cases out. We do not intend to keep a man there at that price as we must charge you $15 per day.

"Our men are there twenty-four hours a day and conditions are bad as ——— put goods in Thursday 2 p. m. He arrived at your home 2 a. m. intoxicated after delivering more goods.

"He went to Springfield and before going went into the vault and took some goods with him. Thursday morning at 2:30 a. m. he gave three flashes on waterfront and got one in return. The reason these people are lurking around your grounds is from information received from them that they had paid to land and are looking for him more than anything else. Has he right to take goods out of vault, destroying all our wires? If so, inform us by wire.

(Signed)

"HOLMES AUTOMATIC ALARM CO., per Mr. Bell."

According to Bellucci, Millionaire Leiter's reply to this telegram read as follows:

Chicago, Ill., Nov. 8, '24.

Restore alarm at Beverly Farms. Will be responsible for what has done. When alarm is restored withdraw watchman.

(Signed) JOSEPH LEITER.

In Salem District Court, where Harris was arraigned, his counsel said that when the first robbery of the Leiter liquor vaults was consummated Harris, Bellucci's watchman, was at home attending a birthday party.

On the occasion of the second robbery attempt, Harris was asleep in the Leiter house and did not hear the robbers, who entered by a side door and removed the liquor from the sound-proof vault.

Harris was held in $1,000 bail for hearing Dec. 15.

INDICATES SCANDAL.

Bellucci in his reports to Leiter and to Federal authorities has revealed, he says, a series of events which, if thoroughly investigated, will bare a scandal of huge proportions.

In an interview he mentioned the names of several Gloucester rum runners whose presence on the Leiter estate has been reported to him by his employes.

The name of a prominent Salem young woman, the owner of a large maroon touring car was brought into the case at Salem yesterday. She may be questioned by Federal authorities as to her knowledge of the liquor thefts.

She is said to be a secretary in the employ of a well known Salem man.

NO POLICE TELL TALE.

General Prohibition Agent Stroup has entered into the investigation.

Special Treasury Agents Owen McKenna and William Harney have submitted a partial report on their investigations to Assistant Federal District Attorney Joseph Carroll.

Bellucci, who installed a burglar alarm in the Leiter liquor vault last September, denies the alarm was connected with the Beverly police station. He asserted that the alarm wires connected only with the Leiter garage and another house on the estate.

With the integrity of his employes and his company at stake he has made disclosures to the Federal authorities, the nature of which he will not disclose.

"I want to see some action in this case," he said. "My man Harris will not be the goat of the guilty parties. I have given Federal officials facts which may result in arrests of several Gloucester and Boston bootleggers.

"I am convinced that they are known to the police, and I can't see why the first load of booze has not been recovered, for I am of the belief that certain officials know where it was hidden."

PHONE SERVICE ASSAILED AS INADEQUATE

David W. Simpson, treasurer and general manager of the Boston & Gloucester Steamboat Company, No. 244 Atlantic avenue, will be on hand "with a gun" when hearings start on the proposed increases in rates sought by the telephone company.

That announcement was contained in one of the ever-increasing number of protests received by the Department of Public Utilities today.

Mr. Simpson declared that instead of increases the company should be forced to pay for damages incurred by poor service and annoyance to which subscribers are subjected.

"We have three telephones in this office, and I would like to have you try them any morning and see if you can obtain connection with the office," Mr. Simpson wrote.

Among other protests received by the department was an order adopted by the Lynn City Council, protesting against the increases as "not reasonable, proper or necessary." The Lynn city clerk, who was ordered to forward a copy of the proceedings to the Department of Public Utilities, is Joseph W. Attwill, a brother of Henry C. Attwill, chairman of the department.

Mrs. Mary Walsh Brennan, an attorney of Lowell, protested in the name of herself and her husband, a physician.

YOUNG STRANGLERS OF WOMAN ARE SET FREE

Chicago, Dec. 4.—Two boys and two girls, still in their teens, have been acquitted by a jury of a charge of murder in connection with the slaying of Mrs. Bessie Garnsden.

The youthful defendants had admitted that they strangled the woman to death as a preliminary to ransacking her home to obtain money they claimed she owed two of the girls, but denied that they intended to kill her.

The defendants were Lucille Marshall, Peggy Valanis and her brother, Anthony, and William Lydon.

COLD WAVE SWEEPING EAST TO NEW ENGLAND

Chicago, Dec. 4.—A wintry blast from the Southwest and Rocky Mountain region brought sleet and snow today to the Mid-West, Plain States and Ohio Valley. In Texas Panhandle the coldest weather in a decade was forecast. The Winter's first extensive damage to wire communication was reported caused by sleet in northern Utah and western Nebraska. Rain and snow fell in the lower Missouri and middle Mississippi Valleys. The low pressure area was expected to reach Middle Atlantic and New England States and Eastern New York tomorrow.

SKELETONS FOUND ON BATTLEFIELD AT QUEBEC

Quebec, Dec. 4.—Memories of the battle of the Plains of Abraham, when Canada was wrested from France by General Wolfe and his British soldiers, were brought back to Quebec with the discovery of six complete human skeletons, old coins, cannon balls, animal skeletons and other relics.

The discovery was made at Wolfe's Cove near the path where General Wolfe led his men up the steep incline to the Plains of Abraham on that memorable morning 150 years ago. The men who unearthed the remains were excavating in connection with the extension of the harbor terminals.

DIPLOMA MILL APPEALS ARE DENIED

Judge Hits Doctors and Examining Board for Fraud and Collusion

Bridgeport, Dec. 4.—In a decision scintillating fire, wholesale damage and the Connecticut scholastic examining board for fraud and collusion, Judge Christopher L. Avery, in Superior Court today, dismissed the appeals of alleged "diploma mill" graduates in the action of the state board of health in revoking their licenses.

Judge Avery says constitutional issues which their counsel were interested by the fact they had no hearing before the state board of health, or medical examining board were fully allowed.

Approving State Referee Holcomb's findings that the petitioners were guilty of fraud in obtaining their certificates, Judge Avery says that "they were guilty of the grossest fraud in presenting themselves as qualified to take the examination at all. It being evident that they had no qualifications whatever and that the so-called medical schools from which they claimed degrees were not in any sense of the word medical colleges, but simply mills for the issuance of medical degrees to unqualified persons, a fact known to the applicants and to some, if not all, of the members of the board."

POLICE TO SEEK WARRANTS IN RUM RAID

3-Hour Search Nets 30 Gallons of Alcohol in South End Cigar Store

Warrants are expected to be issued today as the result of a raid which lasted more than three hours by detectives attached to Inspector Determine headquarters last night on a cigar store at No. 1 Broadway, South End.

Thirty gallons of alcohol and three ten-foot bars were seized, according to the raiders.

The officers searched the front room and cellar of the building without finding any liquor. Finally a large closet was noticed under the stairs leading from the cellar to the first floor. This space was boarded up, but was reached by a trap door from above, the police say. The seized liquor was found in the second room, it is charged.

Murphy held in his report of the tragedy filed with the county clerk of courts today.

DREAM OF LOVE SHATTERED IN 24 HOURS

New York, Dec. 4.—Her dream of happiness was shattered before the first 24 hours of married life had passed, Mrs. Dorothy Martin Hillman, runaway bride of Edward A. Hillman, Jr., Chicago millionaire, declared on being found here today.

"I had hoped to avoid publicity, but as my husband has apparently seen fit to attempt to bring ridicule upon me as well as himself, I think it my duty to myself and family that some details of this affair which should have remained a private one, be straightened out.

"Eddie, according to the police who interrupted my trip East, says I stole his automobile. That is not true. The machine in which I left Chicago was one which he gave me before we were married.

"I do not care about the car, however. It was because of this attitude which I have toward the whole matter that I left the machine in the hands of the officers at Garrett, Ind.

"We were married November 3, one month ago, at the home of my parents, Mr. and Mrs. George W. Martin, of Evanston, Ill. I am sorry to say that my dreams of happiness vanished before the first twenty-four hours of married life had passed.

"It was simply a case of incompatibility with Eddie and myself."

HUNDREDS ASK FOR AID FROM BASKET FUND

Every Effort Will Be Made to Furnish Christmas Dinner to Unfortunates

Unhappiness will prevail in hundreds of Greater Boston homes unless the unfortunates living therein are assisted by the Boston American Helping Hand Xmas Basket Fund.

This is clearly evident from the contents of the large number of letters being received daily in the Basket Fund office.

Virginia Corro

Every possible effort will be made to feed as many of these families as possible, but unless contributions to the fund come in more freely many of the appeals for assistance will remain uncared for.

PATHETIC APPEALS.

A woman writes:

"I am writing to you to ask you not to forget me on Xmas, as my husband is ill with blood poisoning and a small sickly baby keeps me home. I don't know what it is to have three meals a day."

Did you ever stop to think your child could be in the predicament that the following little chap is in? He writes:

"I am a little boy, nine years old, and my mamma and papa are dead. I live with my grandma, but she has to work, in order to support me and my grandpa, who is a cripple. Sometimes we have no supper. I hope you won't forget me when you are sending the baskets."

Three parties in aid of the Fund will be given tomorrow night. There will be a Christmas concert at Pitman Academy, Medford, under the auspices of the Professional Children's Club, directed by Miss Kathleen Vincent O'Hara; magic, music and dancing at Hannun Hall, Central square, Cambridge, under the auspices of the Yates Troupe, and vaudeville and dancing at the Municipal Building, South Boston, under the auspices of P. Vincent's All-Star Orchestra.

Mary Kuhner

May Maguire

PUPILS ASSIST.

Pupils of the Gertrude Dolan-De Petro School of Dancing will furnish the entertainment at the South Boston Municipal Building party. This entertainment will take the form of a minstrel show with James Leonard as interlocutor and Arthur Burke, Thomas Dahill, James Hurley, Francis Donovan, James Lyons and Patrick Hopkins as endmen.

Mattapan folks will boost the fund by attending a dancing party in Obert's Bungalow, River street, next Saturday night. This party will be conducted by the Joseph Sisters, who have arranged an attractive program. The patronesses are Mrs. George F. Killion and Mrs. Charles A. Dale of Dorchester, Mrs. Francis M. Shea and Mrs. Bilodeau of Mattapan, Mrs. W. Hilton Godfrey of Winthrop and Mrs. H. Stevens Ferrell of Allston.

Miss Helen M. Roche of South Boston is working hard with James K. O'Donnell, manager of Gordon's Fields Corner Theatre, Dorchester, to make next Saturday morning's Kiddie Show there a success.

Through the kindness of Tom Spry, manager of First National Pictures of this city, a fine contribution for next Saturday morning's show has been given in the form of the feature picture, "Peck's Bad Boy," in which the child favorite, Jackie Coogan, is starred. There will also be many fine acts of vaudeville.

STANDING OF FUND.

Miss Margaret G. Ronan of the Ronan Dancing Studio, Dorchester, will give a Christmas party fro the fund December 12 in Bloomfield Hall, Geneva avenue, Dorchester. She will be assisted by her pupils, a novel program having been arranged. General dancing will follow the entertainment.

AN OLD RECIPE TO DARKEN HAIR

Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Turns Gray Hair Dark and Glossy

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural color and lustre to the hair when faded, streaked or gray. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is mussy and troublesome.

Nowadays we simply ask at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." You will get a large bottle of this old-time recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients, at very little cost. Everybody uses this preparation now, because no one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair. It does it so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, thick and glossy and you look years younger.

'CAL' SMILES AT OUTBURST OF ORATORY

President Not Excited Over Stock Yards Official "Welcome to Our City"

Chicago, Dec. 4 (I.N.S.).—The President of the United States, traveling in an ordinary Pullman on a special train, "seven as you and I," arrived in Chicago this morning at 8:30.

An enthusiastic crowd, undaunted by inclement weather, gathered about the Baltimore & Ohio station and thronged the route to the Drake Hotel, gave Calvin Coolidge the cheers and members of his party Chicago's welcome.

The President, with Mrs. Coolidge by his side, stepped from the "Capitol Limited as unostentatiously as John Smith and his wife, Mary.

SAME OLD SMILE.

A reception committee, headed by John C. Clay, president of the International Live Stock Exposition, whose guest he will be while here, hailed him with an outburst of oratory, to which "Silent Cal" responded with a nod of his head and the faint flicker of a smile.

The President went immediately to the Drake Hotel, where he went into conference with local political workers, among them Fred Lundin. William Wrigley and Fred G. Dawes. He also let it be known that he would confer with Frank O. Lowden, former Governor of Illinois, whose name has been frequently mentioned for the post of Secretary of Agriculture.

This afternoon the President and his party were to attend the International Live Stock Show and tonight they will be the guests at dinner at the Stock Yards Inn.

RETURN TRIP.

The return trip to Washington will start at 9:30.

Until a late hour last night and beginning again early this morning a constant stream of fellow passengers passed through the car bearing the presidential party, taking hasty glimpses into the Coolidge drawing room, when the door has been open.

Secret service men were stationed at either end of the car throughout the night. Ordinarily, anyone attempting to enter the presidential car on the usual presidential train, would be sharply challenged, but on this trip the strollers went unchallenged.

The truck itself was not damaged.

YOUTH GRABS DIAMONDS IN PROVIDENCE STORE

Providence, Dec. 4.—Police were searching today for the youth who grabbed a tray full of diamonds worth $200 from a tray in the store of the Schaffer Jewelry Company, No. 164 Washington street, and escaped in the throng outside. The youth had returned to get a pair of eyeglasses left for repair earlier in the day. While waiting on the youth, Arthur Schaffer, the proprietor, turned about for a moment,

Mr. James M. Curley, wife of Boston's Mayor, will be in charge of the cafeteria. Mrs. Thomas Ray Cox will have charge of the Gift Shoppe, and the Misses Alice Hurley and Miss Beatrice Whelton will have charge of the candy booth. Mrs. Joan Waldron will have the flower booth.

DIVORCE CASES WAIT BATTLE OVER CHILD

Further hearings in the contest between Mrs. Hazel J. Sylvester of Everett and Royal O. Sylvester of Malden for the custody of their five-year-old child will be held in Middlesex Probate Court.

The couple have been estranged four years. By advice of Judge Legge they decided to settle the question of custody of Royal O. Sylvester, Jr., before taking up cross suit divorce cases.

In court, Mrs. Sylvester told how her husband took the child away, ostensibly to have its photograph made, and failed to return with him. At the end of ten weeks, she received an anonymous letter directing her to visit the Sutton home. No. 6 Sunnyside avenue, Everett.

Mrs. Sylvester said she went to the address, accompanied by a policeman, and found it to be the home of Isaiah Sutton. The baby was there, but so much changed, that so stupefied he was unable to open his eyes.

The mother got a doctor and, when Sylvester attempted to prevent her from taking the child, the policeman interfered and she took it away.

Sylvester, called to the stand, denied he had come home drunk and charged his wife had beaten the little boy.

Washington, Dec. 4.—The nation paid $162,857,784 for its wooden packing boxes in 1923, according to figures made public today by the Census Bureau. The figures does not include cigar boxes. The survey of the packing box industry showed an increase in business of 32.9 per cent. over 1921.

WOMEN CONVICT 'TUG' WILSON AS BANDIT

State Prisoner's Pal, Eagan, Also Found Guilty; Acquit Namesake From N. Y.

While testimony of three women caused the conviction today of "Tug" Wilson, notorious robber, other women saved his namesake, a New York youth, from serving time in State prison.

Earl W. Wilson, known to his pals as "Tug," who is already serving a long term for robbery, was found guilty by a jury in Suffolk Superior Court of armed robbery of a store at No. 42 Bunker Hill street, Charlestown, on December 12, 1921.

With the death of John A. Parker, proprietor of the store, the State relied on testimony of three Charlestown women who told of seeing Wilson and his pal in the store on that date.

Wilson and David Eagan felled Parker with an iron bar and rifled the cash register, getting $70. Eagan was also found guilty today.

Edward Wilson of New York brought here to face charges of burglarizing stores on Washington and School streets more than a year ago was found not guilty in the same court.

The testimony of his wife, Henrietta, and his sister-in-law, Mrs. Julia Roph, both of New York, who declared that he was in New York City on the date of the robberies, won his acquittal.

Wilson, it was learned today for the first time by the district attorney's office here, was tried in New York for the murder of a gunman, "Happy" Gleason, and was acquitted.

For the same robberies with which Wilson was charged, Edward F. Tate is serving a sentence in State prison. Police alleged that the pair worked together.

HUMAN VAMPIRE ON TRIAL FOR 27 MURDERS

Berlin, Dec. 4 (Wireless to Universal Service). — Fritz Haarmann, called the "human vampire," went on trial for his life today at Hanover on charges of having committed twenty-seven murders, probably a world's record number of capital crimes for any one human being.

Added to the number of the murders is the revolting manner in which they were done, making the coming trial a gruesome performance.

VICTIMS ALL YOUNG

Haarmann is charged with having killed his victims, all boys or young men, while in a set of circumstances—something like a Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde transformation—by tearing their throats with his teeth and then cutting up their bodies in small pieces and throwing them into the river.

Haarmann's defence is that he did not know what he was doing while in these trances, but a plea of insanity is excluded because Haarmann is already under observation at an asylum at Goettingen, where he had been pronounced fully responsible for his acts.

SOCIAL SCANDAL LOOMS.

More than 100 witnesses will be called, among them being the parents of many of Haarmann's victims. The trial is expected to develop a big social scandal in the aristocratic capital of the ancient kingdom of Hanover, because Haarmann is known to have had connections within the circle of young men of the fashionable world.

Accused with him as an accomplice is Hans Grantz, who is charged with having procured scores of Haarmann's victims.

BOARD ASKS ASSISTANCE FOR MERCHANT MARINE

Washington, Dec. 4.—The Interstate Commerce Commission in its annual report today repeated recommendations that Congress consider the adjustment of Section 28 of the Merchant Marine Act, now suspended, which is designed to give preferential railroad rates to American exports moving in American ships. No new request was made for important additional legislation.

SLIM HOPE HELD OUT FOR SCHOONER BLUE BIRD

Adrift in the Atlantic without a rudder or sails and with only a few of the crew left, the crew of one man of the schooner Blue Bird today refused to desert their vessel and take safe passage on another ship.

The only hope held out by those now for the schooner and her crew is that she may drift down as far as the Bermuda Islands, encountering coastwise shipping.

St. Paul, Dec. 5.—Governor and Mrs. J. A. O. Preus of Minnesota have named their baby boy Jule Morke, Norwegian for "Christmas Seal," and dedicated him to the cause of health.

SOMERVILLE ARRESTS OF DRUNKS GROWING

The annual report of City Clerk Ralph H. Bradley, filed at the State House today, shows that the number of persons arrested in Somerville during the past year for drunkenness breaks all records.

During the year ending October 31st, there were 1,329 men and women before the Somerville court on public intoxication. This is in comparison with 254 arrested on the same charge in 1918.

According to the police, the new list of drunkers is composed largely of young men, with quite a sprinkling of girls in their teens.

Why is this not an opportune time to dispense of the funds collected in 1919 at the time of the so-called Boston Police Strike, to widows and families of police officers stricken down while in defence of person and property of the citizens of this Commonwealth. An estimated balance of $200,000 remains in that fund, and Albert Montroni was shot down, and the public was appealed to for assistance to assist the widow, while the fund did not pay one cent to assist the widow.

Now two gallant police officers are shot down, and one is married and has a family of five or six small children. Why not cut the red tape, and render assistance where it is sorely needed?

Shall the public spirited citizens of this Commonwealth have to resort to the Attorney-General to enforce the object of that trust? Under the General Laws, Chapter 12, Section 8, which says: "He shall enforce the due application of funds given or appropriated to public charities within the Commonwealth, and prevent breaches of trust in the administration thereof."

How close to the common people are the trustees of these charitable trusts, how close to the wants of the unfortunate dependents of those shot down in cold blood? # MINISTER WILL DIRECT CITY POLICIES

Rev. R. A. Bakeman Elected Mayor of Peabody by 657 Plurality

The rain of votes descended and the flood of opposition came, but the Rev. Robert A. Bakeman led his opponent when the tally was made—and he is Peabody's new mayor.

A plurality of 657 votes over his opponent, Michael J. Sherry, in Tuesday's election gave him the honor and he intends to live up to the title his supporters have given him, "The man of the people."

"VICTORY OF THE PEOPLE."

At his home, No. 80 Lynn street, Mayor-elect Bakeman, who also has been a farmer and a probation officer, declared that his administration will be an administration for all classes.

"It is the victory of the people," he said. "I am only an agent in their hands and they knew for what I have stood. There are 27 nationalities in this city. They have their rights, and that is what I am going to advance in my administration—the interests of all classes.

"I am opposed to any ring in politics. That means when one group of politicians tries at election to transfer its offices to another group, just like the old group. This I have fought. It does not represent true democracy.

"A mayor must be a leader. He must not be controlled or under the sway of any special class. All I have promised to do is to have the best interests of all in mind.

"I will use my position to make this the best city in the Commonwealth. In fact, my reforms will be along the lines of justice and consideration of what will make this an ideal city.

"This is my aim. How far I can make it good, I cannot say at this moment, but I shall give my best. And if I succeed in all my conceptions of what a city should be, I will have people coming here to see an ideal city.

"Of course, I shall be up against problems which may not appear very clear at present, but I believe that the running of cities must be fashioned on other plans than have been popular in the past.

SAYS HE WON'T PREACH.

"Don't think that I am going to preach to people, as I have done in the pulpit. I am, however, going to use all my practical Christianity to uplift this city to a degree of being ideal.

"I shall not use my position as Mayor to advance my own interests. That is not my idea of Democracy. But I shall persevere in all my transactions, to consider what this city needs along the lines of making it grow as a city that has, in some degree, solved a few municipal problems."

Mayor-elect Bakeman was born in Auburn, Me., and was graduated from Colby College. He received his degree of A. M. from Harvard and at one time was assistant to the Rev. George Lunn, minister of a Schenectady, N. Y., Baptist Church, one-time Mayor of Schenectady and now lieutenant-governor of New York.

Pastor-Mayor

REV. R. A. BAKEMAN.
Minister who has been chosen Mayor of Peabody, promises to give Peabody a practical, efficient and Christian administration to his city.

AUTO SKIDS; TURNS OVER; BURNS; DRIVER ARRESTED

Rounding a curve on Washington street in Norwell, an automobile owned by Joseph B. Reardon of Brockton skidded into a pile of rocks beside the road, turned over and caught fire.

Reardon was pinned under the car and was scorched slightly before he was taken out by Douglas E. Foster of No. 142 Islington road, Auburndale.

State police took Reardon into custody pending an investigation of the origin of a whiskey bottle found in the wreckage.

STATE TO OPEN 6 MOTOR VEHICLE OFFICES

The Governor's council approved branch offices of the registrar of motor vehicles in six cities and voted to discontinue such branch offices in three other localities.

The branch offices approved are at Lawrence, Lynn, Pittsfield, Springfield, Worcester and Brockton. Those which the council voted to discontinue are at Fall River, Quincy and Lowell. The council also voted against the establishment of branch offices in Fitchburg and Greenfield.

'Sister' Mitchell Sets Smart Pace for Her Rivals in Society

BLONDE hair with glints like spun gold, deep brown eyes, an exquisitely tilted nose and the slimmest of little figures.

If warrant there's no need for all of the proverbial three guesses to put upon Mrs. John Mitchell as the person in question.

It was while walking down Beacon street the other afternoon that I saw the former Elizabeth Cabot—known to all her set as "Sister"—and as always, her costume was of the smartest.

She was clad in a plum-colored suit, one of those severely tailored affairs with a very long coat, the kind that suits the slenderest of women can wear. A black chapeau, quite as smartly tailored, topped the costume.

Though already speaking Boston is no longer the subject Miss Cabot's home, she has spent a great deal of her time here and on the North Shore since her marriage to young Mitchell a year ago last September.

Mr. Mitchell has a plantation in Cuba, and it was to this romantic distant place that he took his bride immediately following their wedding at Beverly Farms.

As soon as the warm season descend it once more, Mrs. Mitchell came up from Palm to the North Shore. There she first spent some time with her mother, Mrs. John Cassell, at "Hound Pinh Farm," Beverly Farms, and later went to "Glendyne," the Manchester home of her parents-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Walter J. Mitchell, where she was joined by her husband.

The younger Mitchells, who are the new of "Glendyne," attended the dance with the John Lawrences gave for the Prince of Wales at their Topsfield home a little over a month ago.

On that occasion Mrs. Mitchell-yes, indeed, the Prince did dance with her, and a number of times at that—wore a gown of lustrous charmeuse-colored velvet, fashioned in the straight-line mode so much in vogue these days.

Had the young heir to the British throne failed to dance with "Sister" Mitchell, then I should have said that his royal spites jolly well needed attention.

THE costumes of the four young ladies and well-sandy maids will lend not a little color to the gigantic bridge and Mah Jongg party which takes place at the Copley Plaza next Monday afternoon.

Among the debutantes who will usher and well-sandy maids will be Miss Louisa Jaques, daughter of the Edward H. Jaques. She and a group of sister-buds are to wear colors, some of them green and others red, while settling bars made of playing cards will add to the picturesqueness of their costumes.

Apparently all society—or at least that portion of it which "bridges" or "Mah Jongs"—has reserved a place at the Copley-Plaza for Monday's affair, the proceeds of which will swell the coffers of Denison House and Ellis Memorial.

MRS. HORACE BENNEY is almost always "among those present" when the theatre offers anything worth-while.

I wasn't at all surprised to see her in the fashionable audience which attended the opening performance of Anna Pavlowa's farewell appearance at the Boston Opera House.

Mrs. Binney wore a gown of simplest black and circling her throat was a brilliantly sparkling necklace of the style known as a "dog-collar."

There will be four more performances of Pavlowa tonight, tomorrow and Saturday evening and Saturday afternoon—Bostonians very last opportunities to fall under the spell of terpsichorean artistry and grace which Pavlowa alone seems able to weave.

USHER AND BRIDESMAID.

Miss Louisa Jaques will be one of the debutante ushers at the Copley-Plaza next Monday afternoon, when all society plays bridge or Mah Jongg. On Saturday Miss Jaques will be a bridesmaid at the wedding of her sister, Miss Olivia James, and Chandler A. Chapman at St. Paul's Cathedral. (Photo by Davis & Sanford).

SEARLES PLOT TRIAL OPENS MONDAY

Those Accused of Blackmailing Millionaire Must Appear on That Date

Judge Bishop in Superior Court today set next Monday as the date for the trial of those accused of blackmailing Victor Searles, millionaire. The deciding influence in conference between District Attorney O'Brien and counsel for several of the defendants.

Some of the defense counsel objected to the early date on the ground it would be impossible to get witnesses. The District Attorney assured them he would co-operate to the extent of having them summoned in behalf of the Commonwealth, if necessary.

The district attorney said that if William J. Corcoran and J. Wesley Kane, rather than Court and minded pole, he would recommend their cases be placed on file in view of the sentences imposed on them in East Cambridge.

Corcoran and Kane were two of a number of persons indicted for the alleged blackmail of Victor Searles, nephew of the late Edward F. Searles. Methuen recluse. The other defendants are William J. Kelly, William J. Hatfield, Thomas Devins, Charles W. Hossfield, Eleazar Barnes and Blanche Paul. The two women have pleaded guilty and will testify for the State.

AMARAL FACED BY PARENTS OF SLAIN COSMO GIRL IN COURT

AMARAL, OPPOSING COUNSEL AND MR. AND MRS. COSMO

On extreme left Assistant Attorney-General Hurley is seen rising to object to a move of the defense at the trial in Providence of Anthony J. Amaral for the murder of nine-year-old Clementine Cosmo. The prisoner is seen with his counsel at the right, the coolest man in the courtroom. Upper insets, left to right, are: Mrs. Vincent Cosmo of East Providence, mother of the slain girl; Mrs. Cosmo's two-months'-old baby, named after her murdered sister, and Vincent Cosmo, father of Clementine.

SEEK NEW TRIAL FOR ALLEGED DYNAMITER

Haverhill, Dec. 4—A bill of exceptions has been filed with the clerk of the Superior Court in Salem, in the case of John E. Merrick, alleged dynamiter who was sentenced to serve from three to six years. The court has ordered a stay of execution of sentence, pending the filing of exceptions. Merrick is now in the Salem jail, unable to obtain $15,000 bail.

Attorneys Michael L. Sullivan, Salem, and James Homan filed the bill. Merrick was found guilty by a Superior Court jury on October 11, of being an accessory before the fact of placing dynamite near the factory of Knipe Bros., Ward Hill, on January 4, 1923.

The bill contains exceptions to the admission or exclusion of certain evidence, to the refusal to direct a verdict for the defendant, and refusal to give certain instructions to the jury.

DOCTORS SPLIT ON CAUSE OF COSMO DEATH

the witness stand today in the trial of Anthony J. Amaral, Lincoln farmhand, charged with the murder of the child.

Mrs. Cosmo, with the aid of an interpreter, went through her story of the events of the tragic April day last year when she sent her little daughter on an errand from which she never returned.

From time to time she turned her gaze toward the defendant who, she testified, had once lived in her house as a boarder.

Amaral remained calm and stolcal throughout Mrs. Cosmo's recital.

Vincent Cosmo, the woman's husband and father of Clementine, sat on a front bench holding in his arms his two-months'-old baby girl named after the dead child.

BOYS FOUND CLEWS.

Preceding Mrs. Cosmo as witnesses were two Providence schoolboys, who told of finding the Cosmo girl's hat, her umbrella and one of her rubbers, on an ash heap on Cobble Hill road, Lincoln, near the spot where the little one's body was found buried in a shallow grave.

The boys, James Truppsi, fifteen, and Paul de Falco, sixteen, gave their testimony in a straightforward, semi-humorous manner, lifting the pall that hung over the court room when medical experts for the State were describing in detail the sordid details of the attack and strangling of the child.

Questioned by the prosecuting attorney the Struppsi boy's story was as follows:

HUNTING FOR MONEY.

"One day last April, during the Easter school vacation, I went up to Cobble Hill road in Lincoln with a gang of fellers. We read about the girl's body being found in the grave and we wanted to see it.

"When we got there one of the gang said we ought to search for some money in an ash pile. While we were diggin' through the pile of ashes one of the boys found a girl's hat and a small umbrella.

"We didn't find any money and started down the road with the hat. We left the umbrella where we found it.

"Soon we came across a man (Mr. Chaffee of the Industrial Trust Company of Providence), and we asked him 'Have they found the girl's hat?' He said 'No,' so we went back with him and two detectives to where we left the umbrella. They took the things away. Then we found the rubber."

Young De Falco brought smiles from the court, attorneys, jurors and spectators when he told what inspired him to lead his "gang" in a search for "gold." He testified:

FOUND CHILD'S HAT.

"When I was a 'kid' I used to go 'round diggin' in dumps and ash barrels and I found money and stuff often. So I asked my gang to go up to Lincoln that day last April. We went to the grave and looked it over and then we started to dig in the pile of ashes for money.

"It was then that one of the boys found the hat and umbrella. When we returned with the cops for the umbrella we came across the rubber which they later told us was one of the Cosmo girl's.

Medical Examiner Clifford H. Griffin of this city admitted that he barred counsel for the defendant from a second autopsy on the body of the nine-year-old victim.

Dr. Griffin was under cross-examination by Attorney William Troy of counsel for the defence in Judge Hahn's session of Superior Court.

"Didn't you stand at the door and refuse admittance to Attorney Sundlun and his associate when they tried to enter as representatives of the accused?" asked Attorney Troy.

"Yes," replied Dr. Griffin.

BARRED AS LAYMAN.

Q.—Why? A.—Because I was there as the medical advisor of the attorney-general who had charge of the case and I didn't think it proper to admit any layman. I would not have objected to the presence of another physician and as I recall it Attorney-General Carpenter was consulted and gave his consent to a physician for the defendant being present.

Q.—But didn't you go right on with the second autopsy and not wait a half hour to permit a doctor for the accused to respond? A.—We did.

Dr. Griffin differed with Medical Examiner Alexander Marshall of Lincoln, where the child's body was found in a shallow grave in a strip of woods, as to the type of man who killed the girl. Dr. Marshall testified that in his opinion the crime was committed by a "wicked pervert."

Dr. Griffin also differed with Dr. Marshall as to the contributary cause of death. While Dr. Marshall insisted that the child died from strangulation, due to a man's hand kerchief, "tied as tightly as a hangman's noose," he admitted under cross-examination, that death might have been possible from shock or hemorrhage. He stated that if the child hadn't been strangled with the handkerchief, the effects of a fiendish attack would have proved fatal.

Dr. Griffin held firmly to the conviction that strangulation caused death and did not consider shock or hemorrhage.

Cross-examination of Dr. Griffin by Attorney Troy was resumed today before a thronged court room in which women spectators predominated.

Prisoner 2 Hours, Foot Wedged in Rocks

Gloucester, Dec. 4.—His foot wedged tightly between two rocks, William R. Riggs of No. 29 Gee avenue, in the Riverdale district, was rescued after three hours of torture by William B. Noble, a neighbor.

Riggs went fox hunting in Dogtown Common, and when he failed to return Noble set out to look for him.

Riggs declared if he had not been rescued within a short time he would have frozen to death.

MAN MARRIES STEPMOTHER, FIRST LOVE

Binghamburg, N. Y., Dec. 4.—A romance, which had its inception in this little village forty-two years ago, came to light when Mrs. Louise Jordan, fifty-nine years old, and Jonas Jordan, fifty-seven years old, of Nedrow, were married. Jonas Jordan was the stepson of Mrs. Jordan and by his marriage becomes his own step-father, while the bride is stepmother to her own husband.

But all this confusion of relationship isn't disturbing the honeymoon of Mr. and Mrs. Jordan. They are happy in the fulfilment of a dream dreamed when both were children in this little town near the Canadian border.

OBEYED PARENTS' WISHES.

It wasn't expedient for Louise Cook to marry Jonas Jordan at that time. She was but seventeen and he only fifteen. Though both have Indian blood, and it is customary for people of their race to marry young, Louise's parents believed the youthful Jonas too young for matrimony. It was much more sensible for their daughter to marry Jonas' father, who was many years older and needed a wife to care for several children younger than Jonas, a widower. She did as her parents wished.

Young Jonas and his broken heart went to the far West. He lived in California many years, until his father, then an old man in failing health, begged him to come home. He made his home with the couple and their five children, the elder Jordan dying soon after his son returned.

MARRIAGE DELAYED.

That was more than a dozen years ago. Five years ago the family moved to Nedrow and took a little house in Dutton avenue. There Jonas helped his stepmother to bring up the younger of her brood, pooling his earnings with hers to keep the home fires burning. Not until a short time ago did Mrs. Jordan and her stepson dare to take the financial risk of marrying.

Thanksgiving afternoon, accompanid by Mrs. Jordan's daughter, Mrs. Isabelle Pallas, and her youngest son, George D. Jordan, they paid a visit to the parsonage of the Methodist Episcopal Church at Nedrow and there were married by the Rev. W. Carlton Stevens, with the son and daughter acting as matron of honor and best man. Later there was a wedding supper at the Dutton avenue home.

GIRL ARRAIGNED IN LOWELL AS SHOPLIFTER

Lowell, Dec. 4.—Anna M. Beathrow, aged 17, of Nashua, N. H., appeared in district court today on seven charges of larceny from local stores. She is accused of stealing various articles from the establishments of Cherry & Webb, Gagnon's, Chalifoux, Kresge's, Filler's and the Victory Textile Company.

The girl was brought to Lowell on a warrant issued by Captain David Pearse. The thefts, it is alleged, occurred about two weeks ago. The defendant and her sister, aged 16 years, together with another Nashua girl, who is reported missing, came to Lowell at that time.

The smaller girl, it is said, was sent into the various stores to steal the articles, which were turned over to the older girls.

It is said by the police the elder Beathrow girl has admitted her part in the thefts.

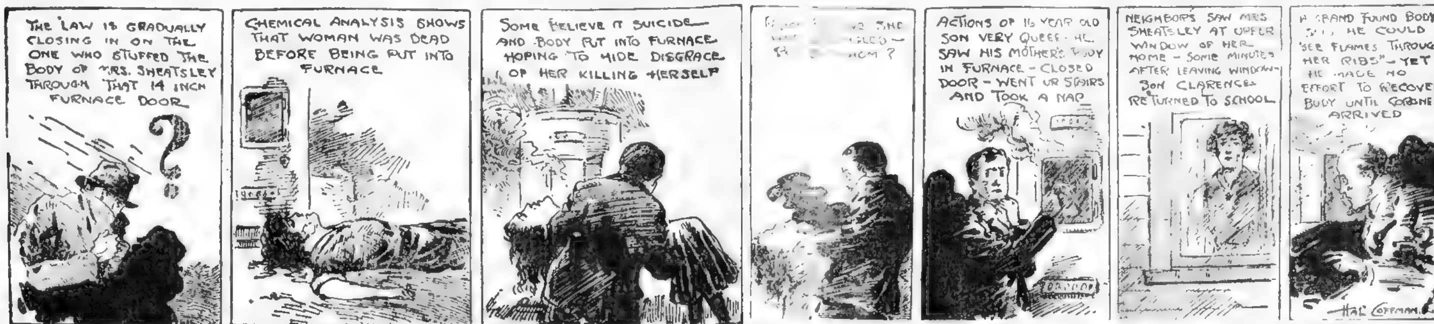
THE STRANGE ACTIONS OF A COLD BLOODED SON

By HAL COFFMAN



The thing that sticks out the most in that terrible Sheatsley tragedy in Ohio seems to be the cold-blooded indifference of the sixteen-year-old son, Clarence. He refers to his dead mother as "she" or "her" on being questioned, and shows not a sign of a tear or any regret that his mother who bore him has left this world through a terrible death. Even after looking into the furnace and seeing the charred remains of what once was his MOTHER, he calmly closed the furnace door, said nothing of his discovery and went upstairs, lay down on a couch and took a nap. Not one show of interest or regret in losing that greatest of ALL THINGS to any man or boy—his MOTHER.

COMMUNISTS IN PARIS CHEER KRASSIN

"Revolution Here!" They Say as Soviet Ambassador Is Loudly Acclaimed

Paris, Dec. 4 (A.P.)—French [illegible] on the arrival [illegible] of Leonid Krassin, the first Soviet ambassador to France as the [illegible] for inaugurating an international campaign for Communism in [illegible].

The demonstrations gave Krassin a greater reception as an ambassador than ever received in Paris. They punctuated the word recognition around Paris, and that "the French communists will now show [illegible] able to do quite as well as the Russian comrades."

The police intervened after [illegible] Deputy Jacques Doriot [illegible] hurled these words from the balcony of the Communists' headquarters to 3,000 enthusiasts who were following Krassin's motor car to the embassy. They cut the procession in two.

The Ambassador said the resumption of normal relations was the first step on which the questions separating the two countries could be settled. It would be difficult to reach an agreement, he said, but he was hopeful.

HOW LAWSON SOLD FIRE EXTINGUISHERS

Tom W. Succeeds Where Others Fail, Sells Fire Extinguishers to Skeptics and Gives the Town a Rare Treat

ADVENTURE OF THE ONE-MAN FIRE DEPARTMENT.

EVEN in Tom Lawson's teens, time was a commodity to be used in a money-making sense.

Unlike most boys of his age, he rarely took time to play the games of youth. The money sense had smothered out any thought of harmless boyish pranks, such as ripping down fences, shattering windows systematically in untenanted houses, blowing one's fingers off with small firearms and other and similar diversions.

Therefore, when several score of restless cows, milling on foreign fields in Federal street, had eased him out of his job—voluntarily, of course, but wisely—he was uneasy until he had set out on the trail to the millions he eventually gathered.

After filling a variety of odd jobs ... about the city and rejecting all of them, he found himself free from remunerative labor and engaged in that pastime or diversion best described as "cooling one's heels" in the office of a State street captain of finance.

He was waiting for an interview, during which he fervently hoped, the seed would be planted from which ultimately the powerful personal money tree would spring to grow sturdy and prosper.

As he waited, a dejected-appearing youth emerged from out an inner office, carrying a fire extinguisher. He swung open the outer office door with a gesture of apathy, passed over the threshold and shuffled out of sight and hearing, leaving the very air in the office heavy and listless with the profundity of his gloom.

Seconds ticked on and then Lawson, suddenly bitten with inspiration, leaped to his feet and dashed from the place, leaving for some other time—perhaps never—the planting of the seed from which he intended his success to spring.

Down the stairs he raced and overtook the creature of woe as he emerged into the street. Lawson touched the gloomy one on the shoulder.

"How long have you been selling these? he asked the stranger, pointing to the extinguisher.

"Two weeks," that worthy replied "Sold many?"

"Not a darn one. People won't buy them. The fire extinguisher is the hardest thing in the world to sell."

But Lawson waved an impatient hand. "Certainly people will buy," he contradicted. "They'll buy anything. The trouble is with you. I don't think you know how to sell them."

A Brilliant Idea

"If you think it's so easy, let's see you sell some," demanded the salesman.

The challenge was laid and the gauntlet of battle thrown. On the ... Lawson started out from the office of the concern manufacturing the fire extinguishers, equipped with one working machine, a packet of lurid, flame-painted literature and a generous supply of order blanks.

Now, Lawson's knowledge of fire extinguishers was limited to the mere understanding that they were made for the purpose of putting out fires. The very name of the engine implied that.

But by reading the directions carefully, he discovered that the best—in fact the only way to put out fires with the implement he carried, was to turn it bottom side up and jet the weapon do the rest. Even he, amateur though he was, could not go wrong in this regard.

Even at this early date, young Lawson unconsciously was engaged in developing those traits of mental

SUES OVER AUTOPSY NOT AUTHORIZED

Accusing Dr. Fred D. Jones, medical examiner of Springfield, of performing an autopsy on her husband's body without first gaining the consent, Mrs. Etta Stiles of Brookline today sued him for $25,000 in Superior Court at Dedham. Her husband, Edwin C. Stiles, was killed by an automobile in Springfield on October 25, 1923. Mrs. Stiles charges

SUGAR MERGER HALTED BY COURT DECREE

Washington, Dec. 4—Merger of the American Sugar Refining Company with the National Sugar Refining Company of New Jersey will require a court modification of a decree entered in 1922 in the opinion of Attorney-General Stone.

The Attorney-General said today a Department of Justice investigation into a merger proposal had convinced him, although the inquiry still is incomplete, that sufficient grounds exist for withholding consent without first having a court review.

HEART STIRRED BY ACTING OF MISS DAVIES

Julia Sanderson Regrets She Did Not Enter Movies After Seeing "Janice"

Miss Julia Sanderson [illegible] regret.

It is a regret born of [illegible] inspiration.

Until the advent of [illegible] Miss Sanderson had [illegible] height of [illegible] national fame [illegible] comedy attractions of America?

MME. HOMER DELIGHTS LARGE AUDIENCE

Mme. Louise Homer, contralto, sang at Symphony Hall last night for the benefit of the Farrington Nursery of the Community Health Association. A large audience attended.

Mme. Homer is another of those artists who give fine performances year after year and who seem to be blessed with perpetual youth. Her voice is still glorious. Her high tones may be just a trifle thinner than they used to be, but there is still the gorgeous organ-like quality in the low tones. She sings too with great artistry and sincerity. In such a piece as the aria "Ombra Mai Fu" from Handel's "Xerxes" her voice was heard at its best.

Another interesting number was Respighi's "Nebbie."

Miss Ruth Emerson accompanied Mme. Homer at the piano.

RED SOX BUY ANOTHER PITCHER---LUCEY OF JERSEY CITY

COMES TO BOSTON IN CASH DEAL

Hartford, Ct., Dec. 4—The Boston clubs continue to show the big leaguers the trail in the open baseball market here. President Bob Quinn of the Red Sox today bought Pitcher Joe Lucey from the Jersey City club of the International League. The price was not given out, but the hurler was sought by quite a few clubs.

This deal following the [illegible] of Jim Welsh of Seattle to the Braves for $50,000 [illegible] made the Boston [illegible] league owners [illegible] are talking [illegible] Boston moguls.

For years Boston has [illegible] buying at [illegible] National and the American League clubs have been sel[illegible] new management [illegible] of building up.

Half a dozen National League clubs have been trying to get Johnny Cooney away from the Braves, whom the [illegible] League is bidding on [illegible] Sox. The same Sox have [illegible] bought Pitcher R[illegible] for Salt Lake. Looks like a big [illegible] in front for Boston.

The Brave Seattle deal [illegible] biggest yet put over at the minor league session. President [illegible] snatched Welsh away from the outstretched hands of a half dozen or more big league bidders among them Bill Killefer, brother of Wade Killefer, the Seattle manager.

As a matter of fact, it was common talk in Seattle this year [illegible] Welsh's going up [illegible] a certainty that he would join the Chicago Cubs because of the close relationship between the two Killefer brothers and closer friendship between the Seattle owners and William Wrigley, owner of the Cubs.

But Seattle, Pacific Coast champion, needs pitchers far more than anything else in the world and the Boston bid with two of the ability of Stryker and [illegible] thrown in proved the most [illegible].

Welsh has been playing [illegible] baseball only two years [illegible] time he has [illegible] outfielder at Oakland, California [illegible] leading [illegible] fielder in the Far West [illegible] record.

He had an idea he [illegible] first base when he first broke in with Seattle but Killefer switched him this year to his proper [illegible] centre field. He hit [illegible] 16 home runs and stealing 17 bases. He bats left handed and throws right-handed, stands an inch over six feet, weighs 175 pounds and is a flash in the field.

A Story of Flaming Youth

Heart and Soul of 1924 Flapper Laid Bare in Best Story by Author of "Chickie"

START THE STORY HERE TODAY

Margaret Meadows … seventeen. His dissolute habits soon made her miserable. The night he raised his hand to his two-year-old child in a drunken rage she slipped from his home with her baby. Margaret supported her daughter by teaching school in several villages, finally settling … where she met Andrew and they fell in love. But he was tied to an invalid wife and Margaret refused to let him leave her. Nora at 17 fell in love with Dane Herrick. Andrew's wife recovers and attacks him with a pistol. He says good by to Nora Lee and gives … of bonds. Andrew is killed in an auto accident and … for bonds of Nora. Nora meets Maxwell Reed, who makes love to her. Margaret dies and Nora is left alone. Andrew's widow accuses Nora of stealing the bonds.

"I love you, Nora Lee, as you know, but I can't write the way you can. I love your blue eyes and your black hair. I see your face and sometimes at night I … because I am restless longing for you. Please write now, then I will have an answer … I never disappoint you or keep you waiting a minute.

"You say you want me to succeed—to get to the top. Do you, really, or do you want me anyhow? If so say it. I'll come. That's what love does. I don't care a hang about any thing else but you, Nora Lee—but you. You're the sweetest dear."

She went tiptoeing down the hall to her room. When deeply moved Nora Lee walked on her toes and talked in a soft murmur to herself. She said amazed, and feeling a fire rushing to her neck: "He doesn't know—he doesn't know—oh, do I want him—do I want him—"

Call From Minna

She became indignant when hot tears splashed in her hand. She tried to brush them off. But suddenly she whispered: "I'll cry if I want. I have a right to cry!"

She was unlocking the door of her … room. She didn't know … wished to hide herself in there. But she sat on the bed and buried her face in the pillow.

The phone jangled through the … house—three times before she answered it. It was Minna. She couldn't come. Would Nora Lee mind if she changed the date to tomorrow?

No—Nora Lee didn't care. All nights were the same.

She remained hours sitting in the living room—scarcely noticing the dark, aware only of a panic in her heart . . . aware only of the feeling that she were being dropped into a pit, deeper and deeper. She would never get out. No one cared. Not even Dane. No one would reach her a hand.

She got up and went to her room

Godfrey Finds Welcome

[illegible]

"I have no … one ever … such puppets … and Death pulling the strings as suits their caprice …

Godfrey … newspapers … the grate. The fire … its golden flare he … with her … her chin … under the … trouble …

New Complication

His heart swelled. He turned quickly back to the fire, shifting the logs. Godfrey Bell was in love with Nora Lee. He had come here tonight to tell her so.

That sudden glimpse of her young, desperate eyes unnerved him. He had come out to take advantage of her grief, her loneliness, her sudden and cruel isolation from the bright gayeties that are youth's natural right. He thought: "I can help her. In the end I can make her happier than any other can, for I know her fine abilities. I will help her to develop."

But, even dressing and thinking this, he had been aware that Nora Lee would listen to him now because she was beaten—half cowed by Life. A few months ago she would have lightly ignored him as she did the day he gave her the magazine with her article printed. She would run away in haste, not even guessing his enormous disappointment. For he would merely be the "English teacher"—an impersonal article, highly respectable and well read, but scarcely a human being.

For two and a half years Godfrey Bell had watched Nora Lee. Fully half this time he had been infatuated with her. Sitting at his desk, the reading of "Hamlet" was raised from a routine duty to a passionate enthusiasm. For he singled out her face, waiting for it to glow, for her eyes to warm and flush.

WOMEN TO SEE "JANICE"

TONIGHT'S the night for the second theatre party, when 200 members of the WNAC American Women's Club will see Marion Davies in Janice Meredith at the Majestic as guests of the Boston American.

Members who have not already secured their tickets for tonight can obtain them by calling today before 5.30 P. M. at Room 551, 5 Winthrop square, Boston, which is the Club Headquarters. The seats are complimentary, so all you need is your membership card for identification. If tickets for tonight should be gone when you arrive (though there are plenty at this writing) your name will be put on the list for the next party which will be on December 8th.

Every effort will be made to provide an opportunity for as many club members as possible to see this beautiful and stirring picture, "the best picture ever filmed," as one critic puts it.

Four more parties will be given on December 8, 9, 10 and 11th, 200 members of the WNAC American Women's Club being entertained each evening. If you wish to attend any of these parties, write Martha Lee which night you prefer to go, give your membership number and enclose a stamped addressed envelope. Tickets will be forwarded promptly.

No one will want to miss this unusual opportunity to enjoy a … theatre seat at such a fine picture without expense. Free theatre parties are just one of the many pleasures that members of the WNAC American Women's Club are entitled to.

This unique club of no dues but many benefits, founded by Martha Lee, now numbers 15,100 members. If you wish to join, a membership coupon appears on this page every Monday and Saturday.

DAILY SHORT STORY

CROSSING THE BRIDGE

By Evangeline Weir

THERE was no beauty in the life

responsibility

child into life. Love is abuse.

Mary crossed the

and a song

heart and pression

Quickly her house was set in or-ers, the chickens driven under cover safely locked up from all danger.

Then she crossed the bridge to her real home. Her heart had been living in it for weeks while her body toiled in Tom McGee's kitchen.

When John Smith came in from his work he found the evening meal upon the table and Mary seated by the teapot. There was a question in his big eyes which she answered.

"I am home to stay."

days and I am celebrating."

She saw a troubled look on his plain, kind face.

"Don't you want me?" she asked with a merry gesture of her toil-worn hands.

With Clean Eyes

He answered her directly and honestly with clear eyes.

"That is the trouble, Mary; I want you always. This thing which has crept upon me unawares I cherish as something sacred. It's like Heaven to have you do for me the little things a woman does for the man

she loves."

The secret they had been hiding was out in the open. Mary held out her hands and raised her face. John

Smith shook his head and moved away from the touch.

"Nothing could make me love you.

You are Tom McGee's wife."

Mary's head went down at the loving rebuke. The one bar, fine thing that had come into her life must go the way of all her lost dreams and longings. She rebelled at the waste.

"It isn't fair," she cried. "I'll come at any cost."

She moved toward him, but he left her alone to fight it out with her own soul.

Mary McGee crossed the bridge in darkness. She remembered that the chickens had gone to roost supperless and the cow had not been milked. The dog welcomed her with bark of delight and the cat clung to her skirt. She brushed them aside, opened the door and went straight to her room. She unlocked an old desk and took a folded paper from a drawer. She read it over many times before she carried it to the kitchen where a low fire burned on the hearth. She stirred the glowing embers into a blaze and dropped the paper in the flames. It was her marriage certificate.

All in Order

When Tom McGee returned from his trip he found all things in order and the well-loved chickens thriving. He brought with him a cook and hen of choice breed; he was loquacious and unusually kind. He had purchased a cheap dress of striking color for his wife and expected to find her grateful for the unusual gift.

"Tom," she said, unable to endure his prattle, "I have something serious to tell you."

His face grew hard.

"Something has happened to the white pullet I got from Thomas. I told you to keep your eye on her."

"It is something about myself."

He looked relieved.

"I am through with John Smith."

His mind did not grasp her meaning and she was obliged to repeat

it. His face grew dark and he muttered, "Skunk!" for he was addicted to the fast that

Mary had crossed the bridge often during the last few weeks.

"Skunk!" he repeated. "A man that will steal another man's wife, will steal chickens. John Smith! We want to know together—"

Mary had decided when she burn ed her certificate to be a free woman. She told him simply what she had done.

Into the Flames

"When I put it into the flames and watched it, I felt already at peace. I have broken the link that bound us and I shall never live with you again."

"Haven't I been good to you

Mary?"

"You have been good to the chick ens. I am leaving you tonight."

Tom McGee lit his pipe and opened his pocket knife. He selected a bit of wood from the heap on the hearth and began to whittle it. After a time he threw it into the fire, laid down the pipe and turned to the woman who had divorced him after a code of her own making.

"Don't be hasty, Mary; I think we

The door opened and John Smith

"We are divorced! Mary burned her marriage certificate. If you give

John Smith glanced at Mary and REEL I.

LORGON HULL, a young man, is a spluttering rattle. He lives in an apartment house, so he really doesn't need the rails. But he wants to be President of the United States and thinks rail splitting a good way to begin. He looks up from his work into the purple eyes of Marcelle Wave, daughter of the richest man in town. Marcelle smiles from her pop's buggy and says: "My, what a lot of rails you've split! Easily fifty electoral votes there." Her pop, Tidal Wave, says: "Don't speak to that boy, Marcie; he ain't got no money." Longon does not deign to answer.

REEL II.

Longon, still at work, sees the fire engines go by. With that keen perception that marks the born statesman, he remarks: "Gee, there must be a fire." There is. Tidal Wave's house is in flames. Marcelle is trapped in an upper floor. Our hero grabs one of his choicest rails, dashes into the house next to Wave's, shoves rail across the area and saves the gal. As he brings her to safety, Old Man Wave grunts: "Ye needn't think that just because ye saved my dotter ye can marry her. Here's a nickel fer yer trouble."

REEL III.

Six months later. Our hero, now in the U. S. Senate, is leading a fight against a constitutional amendment to prohibit babies from crying between the hours of midnight and 1:30 p. m. Old Man Wave favors the amendment, forgetting that he himself was once a child. We flash to the Senate cloakroom. Wave and his gang are plotting to destroy Longon's reputation and thus win their fight.

REEL IV.

The Senate is about to vote. Longon is delivering a magnificent speech against the amendment. Tidal Wave arises, and, pointing his finger at our hero, shouts: "That man is not fit to be a U. S. Senator. He is an habitual gum chewer!" In the gallery Marcelle faints vociferously. The spectators denounce Longon, who coolly eats a wedge of huckleberry pie. The Senate votes to try him.

REEL V.

THE GREAT TRIAL SCENE—An impressive moment in the Senate. Old Man Wave develops a strong case against Longon. Our hero, on the stand, is asked: "Do you chew gum?" He replies fearlessly: "Yes." The Senators look grim. At this moment Marcelle runs onto the floor and cries: "Wait!" In a trice she has turned up all the Senators' swivel chairs. She points to a circle of little mounds of dried chewing gum on each chair. "You are all guilty," she charges. The Senators, crestfallen, admit it. In order to do the right thing by Longon, they unanimously elect him President of the United States and Marcelle's husband. Fadeout.

MEDBURY SAYS—

By John P. Medbury

ONE of the handiest words in Mr. Webster's dictionary is the word "conference." A conference is something that a business man is in every time you want to see him.

CONFERENCES cover up a multitude of sins, such as shooting craps and chedling over lottery tickets.

ONE New York executive never allowed to read the racing charts until his secretary told him what a conference was.

AND now he's in one of them four or five times a day.

A CONFERENCE seems to be something that very few officials ever come out of.

AND if they should come out of one they go right into another.

CONFERENCES are for bosses only, office boys aren't entitled to them.

OFFICE boys are supposed to work hard. They can't loaf until they become executives.

FOR years general managers, division heads and vice-presidents used to be "out of town" when you called, but now they're in a conference.

AND being in a conference is worse than being out of town; it's like being in Europe.

SOME general managers go into conference every time the mail clerk wants to buy another stamp.

AND by the time they pass on the requisition the clerk doesn't need a stamp. It's too late to mail the letter.

ONE guy is always in conference no matter who calls. He's planning to fire his secretary and hire a parrot.

FOR ten dollars he can get a parrot to earn "He's in conference" as well as any stenographer.

ALL he'll have to do will be to hang the bird cage outside the door and then go back and read his magazine.

IF he's reading a continued story, he can stay in conference until the next instalment comes out.

ONE boss couldn't even forget the office while he was home. He was taking a bath one morning when his plumber called and he had his wife tell the plumber that he was in a conference.

BUSINESS executives all over the country should hold a conference in the near future and decide upon something else to be in when ever somebody wants to see them.

3-MINUTE JOURNEYS

By Temple Manning.

WE HAVE often been told that modesty is a matter of training and habit, but since we live among people who have the same habits in this regard as our own, we do not realize the truth of the theory.

Among our primitive ancestors, however, modesty demanded no more in the way of clothing than a loin cloth. And to this day, there are many regions where clothing, as we know it, does not exist. For instance, in those parts of the Libyan desert that have not been influenced by the Arab civilization, the loin cloth remains the chief article of wearing apparel.

It is a strange fact, however, that the people who wear the fewest clothes are prone to indulge their sartorial fancies by adorning themselves with jewelry of any and every conceivable variety.

We always associate the wearing of innumerable strings of beads and bracelets with more primitive civilizations. And this idea has a basis in fact. An African explorer tells a story of presenting some macaroni to the natives of Togo. To his surprise and amusement he soon beheld the strings of macaroni bedecking the throats of the young damsels. They saw in this article, new food the possibility of more "jewelry" and nothing could induce them to eat it.

To our civilized eyes there would probably be something very strange in the sight of children dressed in nothing more than a little skirt of dried grass or a strip of cloth and wearing strings of beads about their throats and bracelets of ivory and silver on their arms. But there is nothing the least bit surprising to the people of the Libyan desert in this sight. It is quite the ordinary thing among them and they would not understand you if you said that they were immodest.

Strangest of all the adornments of the Libyan tribes is the nose bead. To wear this bit of jewelry the nose must be pierced just as the ears are pierced for earrings. These nose beads are apt to be bits of amber or coral or silver. Amber is quite popular and very highly prized among the Libyans. They will not part with it even for the much-prized gold. It is generally believed that the ornaments of amber found their way into the Sudan from Germany. But wherever these ornaments came from they are today by far the most popular part of the apparel of the Africans.

SECRETS OF HEALTH

By Charles A. L. Reed, M. D.
Former President of the American Medical Association.

YOUR bowels ought to move without assistance once or twice in twenty-four hours. Any less frequent action is to be construed as constipation. This may be very slight, amounting to only an occasional failure of the bowels to evacuate themselves, or two to twelve days, or even longer time may elapse without evacuation.

There is such a condition as a "masked constipation." This means that, in the presence of even one or two spontaneous actions from the intestines every day, that which has passed at any one time ought to have been passed two or three or more days before.

But the bowels are "regular"—they move every day.

It is in the presence of this "regularity" that some of the worst consequences of constipation are experienced.

The mischief that is done by constipation comes from absorbing into the system certain elements of food and of its decomposition that ought to be carried off with the contents of the bowels.

When certain of these poisonous products, which scientists call "amino acids," are absorbed into the circulation the condition is one of auto-intoxication.

This means that toxins or poisons have been taken into the blood and distributed throughout the system.

In fact, these toxins or poisons reach and act upon all tissues and organs of the body, but upon some more than others.

The one most frequently affected is the brain, in which, as a result of this intoxication, headache is experienced.

Every case of recurrent headache is a case of systemic poisoning, either from the intestines or from some other source.

Another set of organs that is seriously affected by the amino acids is the kidneys. In these, with beginning congestion, there finally results a low grade inflammation manifesting itself by the condition most generally spoken of as Bright's disease.

Another organ soon affected by constipation may be the pancreas. In the pancreas, certain tissues called the "Island tissues" may be destroyed, with the result that there is presently developed an incapacity of the system to take proper care of the sugars that you eat. The next result is the appearance of sugar in the urine. This is the general condition spoken of as diabetes.

I have recounted these possible and frequently observed consequences of chronic constipation chiefly to impress you with the importance of giving the condition proper attention.

This proper attention consists, first, of a diagnosis of the condition; and next, its appropriate treatment under the direction of your physician.

By timely and intelligent action these serious consequences may very generally be averted.

FAMOUS FIRSTS

By Mark Stuyvesant

ALTHOUGH there are great stretches of territory in China that even today are a land of mystery to most of the world, as early as the thirteenth century they were traversed by Marco Polo, the first European to travel through this country.

Marco Polo was born in Venice in 1254, of a noble Italian family. His father and uncles were engaged in commerce, and, accordingly, when Marco was six years old, he was left by his father in Constantinople, while the latter, together with his brother Maffeo, started on a business trip to Crimea.

A series of coincidences brought these two Venetians into contact with the brother of the Chinese Emperor, who invited them to pay a visit to the court of Kubla Khan. Nothing loth, they accepted, and finally reached the Chinese court in Peking.

This began the mediaeval period of intercourse between China and Catholic Europe, which threw Asia open to Western travelers until the middle of the fourteenth century, when it was closed again, not to be reopened until the nineteenth century.

The Poles grew rich and powerful in the service of the Khan. They accumulated vast stores of silks, precious stones and perfumes. But this did not prevent them from wanting to return to the land of their birth. A diplomatic mission, ostensibly, presented itself, and they brought the Poles back to Venice in 1295.

Marco Polo settled down and recorded his experiences in a book. The wonderous tales told set men's imaginations on fire. Columbus, who lived some few years later, was one of those who read Marco Polo's book, and it was to him the impetus for his memorable voyage.

FINANCE

—By B. C. Forbes—

A piece of land was sold the other day in New York city at a price equal to $13,192,240 per acre.

* * *

That is only one of the impressive facts brought out by C. S. Mead, secretary of the Merchants' Association of New York, when asked to tell the readers of this column something about the magnitude and the activities of the nation's largest city. Other facts follow:

The increase in assessed valuation of real estate in New York city from 1924 to 1925 was $1,584,000,000, which is greater than the entire assessed valuation of St. Louis, Cleveland or Boston.

The Equitable Building, with an assessment of $30,000,000, is the most valuable building in New York. This is more than the entire assessed valuation of Amsterdam, N. Y.; Davenport, Ia., or Evanston, Ind.

The highest assessment for a department store in New York is $13,-900,000; for an apartment house, $5,-300,000; and for a theatre, $4,100,000.

TAXES WILL BE LEVIED ON 44,333 NEW BUILDINGS IN NEW YORK CITY THIS YEAR.

The property exempt from taxation under the law is worth $833,-000,000, according to the Tax Commission; 497,230 buildings are exempt.

The peak price for land in New York city is $304 per square foot, just paid for a plot about four miles from the heart of the financial centre. This equals $2.11 per square inch, or $608,000 for a twenty-foot lot such as a man buys in the suburbs to build a house; or of $13,-192,240 PER ACRE.

New York is the oldest incorporated.

The tallest building in the city and in the world is the Woolworth Building, which is fifty-seven stories high and rises 792 feet above the street.

The New York Telephone Company reports more than 1,175,000 telephones in use in the city in 1923 and 129 central offices, compared with 1,071,850 telephones and 114 central offices in 1922.

The Transit Commission figures that approximately 350,000 commuters come into New York every business day and approximately 129,000 visitors.

The eleven trunk line railroads which enter or approach New York carried 234,867,491 persons into or out of the city during 1923. With ferry and Hudson tube passengers added, eliminating duplications, PASSENGERS ENTERING AND LEAVING NEW YORK DURING 1923 TOTALED 325,920,315.

According to the shipping board's bureau of research, New York leads all American ports in the overseas movement, handling 208,359 incoming and outgoing passengers during the first six months of 1923, as compared with 249,002 for the United States as a whole.

The port of New York has a total waterfront, measured around pierheads and along the entire shore line, of 921 miles, equal to the distance between New York and Atlanta, Georgia.

Approximately one-half of the foreign commerce of the United States is handled through the port of New York. In 1923 imports valued at $3,364,709,682 and exports of $2,860,254,116 were handled through this port, according to custom house reports, a combined increase of $500,-000,000 over the previous year.

New York has 400 commercial piers and about 80 miles of commercial wharfage. OVER 200 OCEAN STEAMSHIP LINES OPERATE FROM THIS PORT.

New York is the amusement centre of the world. In 1923, the department of licenses reports, there were 192 licensed theatres and 555 licensed motion picture houses in the city, with total seating capacity of 727,142 and an average daily attendance of approximately 680,000.

In 1922 contracts were awarded for 6,672 new buildings in the city to cost $529,104,000; in 1923, the figures were 9,214 and $638,886,000.

Verily, New York is a city of which not only New Yorkers but all Americans may well be proud.

LIVING COST PROTEST IS 'OLD-TIMER'

By FRANK H. MELOON, Financial Editor.

The living cost protest is an "old timer."

Nowadays we are getting altogether too apt to think of the high cost of living as a problem created by the Great War and to harbor the idea that "normalcy" lies back of the day when the Kaiser started big action in Europe. A glance at the "files" will suffice to correct the error. Here's a small contribution from Judge, printed in 1910:

It costs a lot to live these days,
More than it did of yore,
But when you come to think of it
It's worth a whole lot more.

* * *

"The prosperity of every New Englander and of every New England industry will be increased if you will ask to be shown New England products and give them an equal opportunity in your purchasing. To know New England products is to want New England products."

The above was the New England Week message, sounded September 15-20. It marked the turning point in the textile industries, and should not be forgotten. Usually well-informed opinion has it that our textiles still have a good way to go before they are all in the fairway of prosperity, but we may find cheer in the fact that they are at least headed in the right direction.

Secretary Mellon announced subscriptions for which cash and certificates maturing December 15, 1924, are tendered in payment for new 4 per cent. Treasury bonds 1944-54 already exceed $500,000,000. Since Treasury desires only to obtain cash to extent of $200,000,000 or thereabouts, the Treasury will close subscriptions at close of business today.

Any subscriptions received by Federal Reserve banks by 10 o'clock Saturday and mailed before midnight today will be deemed to have been presented before books closed.

STOCKS CLIMB WITH RAILS LEADING

Buying on the New York Stock Exchange, responding to the good impression created in financial circles by President Coolidge's message to Congress, the sweep of sterling toward parity and reports of business improvement, prices continued their climb.

Southwestern rails, whose dividend prospects appeared to be enhanced by the inauguration of dividends on Frisco common were actively bought. Seaboard Air line preferred soared 4 points while Frisco common and preferred, Katy common and preferred, Wabash preferred A, St. Louis Southwestern and Gulf Mobile & Northern advanced 2 to 3.

Heavy accumulation of Mallinson followed the announcement that November sales were 100 per cent. in excess of those of the same month last year. More than two score issues, half of which were rails, attained new peak prices before noon. Call money renewed at 3 per cent.

Demand sterling advanced nearly two cents to $4.68¼, the highest since Apr. 1923, and less than five cents below the peak of that year.

New 1924 high records were established by more than twenty issues, including prominent rails such as Atlantic Coast Line, Illinois Central preferred, Texas & Pacific, Wabash preferred "A", St. Louis-Southwestern and both Frisco issues.

In Boston trading New England Telephone was up over a point. Warren Bros. added ⅝ and New Haven around a point. Edison advanced ¾. Other changes were for minor fractions, nearly all on the upside.

LYNN POLICE GUNS FOUND USELESS

Regular inspection of all revolvers carried by Lynn police and a general clean up of gangs of young men who congregate in the doorways of business places at night, were ordered by Mayor McPhetres in a letter to Chief of Police Thomas A. Burckes as a move to prevent lawlessness in Lynn.

The Mayor said it had been reported to him that several Lynn policemen are carrying guns which are virtually useless. These policemen, he said, have complained that the department has not had target practice in three years and that it is impossible for them to get ammunition to replace that used by them in private target work.

The Mayor declared he was anxious to have pistol practice resumed at the expense of the city and ordered that all police revolvers be kept in good condition and be inspected regularly.

Mayor McPhetres also wrote that a tour of the city had convinced him that the police were lax in preventing drinking in the city. He told the chief that he had seen several groups of young men drinking liquor from bottles in the doorways of down town establishments and demanded immediate action by the police department to put a stop to the practice.

BEACON OIL IS TO INCREASE STOCK

Beacon Oil Company, which operates a large refinery at Everett, is about to increase its outstanding common stock by 20 per cent. There are 160,000 no par common shares at present outstanding, of which the Massachusetts Gas Companies own about 44½ per cent.

It is proposed to offer 32,000 additional shares of common at $25 a share in the proportion of one new share for each five existing common shares. This financing will provide $800,000 and after the new common shares are issued the capitalization of the company will consist of $875,-000 6½ per cent. serial purchase money notes, $2,750,000 7½ per cent. preferred and 192,000 shares of no-par common.

The proceeds of the financing are to be used principally to provide funds for the continuance of the company's efforts to develop a supply of crude oil in Venezuela. As of October 31, 1924, the company had invested a total of $1,943,000 in the purchase of common stock of the Beacon Sun Company, and this money, together with an equal amount invested by the Sun company, has been spent in the acquisition of properties, surveying, geological investigations and drilling operations.

The drilling done to date has not resulted in finding any oil, but none of the deep test wells has as yet been completed and most of the wells drilled to date have been core drill holes to determine sub-surface structure. The developments in neighboring properties in Venezuela which have occurred since this company entered the field have established the importance of the Maracaibo Basin as an oil field of the first rank. It is the opinion of the management that Beacon Sun holdings are favorably located and that continuance of exploratory drilling should develop oil production thereon.

DRAFT PROTOCOL ON CONTROL OF OPIUM

Geneva, Dec. 4 (I.N.S.).—The final draft of the protocol aimed to limit the manufacture of opium for smoking was agreed upon at the international conference for the suppression of opium except for drug purposes. ## A FEELING OF SECURITY WHEN YOU USE SWAMP-ROOT

You naturally feel secure when you know that the medicine you are about to take is absolutely pure and contains no harmful or habit producing drugs.

Such a medicine is Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, kidney, liver and bladder medicine.

The same standard of purity, strength and excellence is maintained in every bottle of Swamp-Root.

It is scientifically compounded from vegetable herbs.

It is not a stimulant and is taken in teaspoonful doses.

It is not recommended for everything.

It is nature's great helper in relieving and overcoming kidney, liver and bladder troubles.

A sworn statement of purity is with every bottle of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root.

If you need a medicine, you should have the best. On sale at all drug stores in bottles of two sizes, medium and large.

However, if you wish first to try this great preparation send ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. When writing be sure and mention this paper.

Give Air Service Place in the Cabinet

The British, who are specialists in the business of government, have consolidated their air force and made it a separate command under an Air Marshal.

This is a step which is demanded by common sense in this country.

The airplane is no side issue to be tucked away in the corner of any bureau or subjected to the jealous hostility of any gentleman whose future advancement will be imperiled by the elevation of the air service to its real importance.

One of the historic weaknesses of all war establishments is petty jealousy, petty intrigue.

It may be remembered that when President Lincoln gave General Hooker the command of the army, he accused him, in the very letter announcing his appointment, of having been disloyal to the General whose place he was named to fill.

In every war the rank and file suffer from animosities of commanders, and between wars the capitals of nations buzz with the bickerings of officials, more intent on exalting their own branches than on considering the welfare of the national defence as a unit.

Thus the partisans of the army and navy have a lasting rivalry and so have the separate branches of each service.

Then when the airplane came into the war game, it was regarded with jealousy by many in both army and navy, and even when the fighting birds were adding laurels to our crown in the great World War, the fliers were waved aside by their military elders as a branch of the service which received praise in proportion to its romantic appeal, rather than the value of its service.

And so the future of our air service should be intrusted to those who are devoted to it, to those who believe, as the other leading nations believe, that in the next war the sky will be the real frontier.

It is the plain mandate of world conditions that Congress proceed without delay to place the air service of America upon a footing second to none on earth.

When any important objective is sought in private life, the first thing that is done is the appointment of a responsible working force to bring that objective about.

The first thing to do in the matter of repairing our sky negligence and relieving the utter loneliness of the American eagle is to testify to our recognition of the dignity of the air service by erecting a suitable governmental agency to take charge of it.

If national importance be the guide to go by, then our air service would be represented by a member of the President's Cabinet!

Let us give this great branch of the nation's defence the same commanding place in our government that it now holds in the reckonings of statesmen all over the world.

Do Women Always Talk?

Not in This Case—It's the Man

In the public eye at present are the Reverend Dr. Percy Stickney Grant and Mrs. Rita de Acosta Lydig, formerly engaged to marry Dr. Grant.

Dr. Grant goes to the hospital, to find out exactly what is the matter with him in addition to pernicious anaemia. In the hospital, and out, he talks volubly.

Mrs. Lydig, in her apartment, sympathizing presumably with the serious illness of the man to whom she was formerly engaged, says nothing. She does not even reply to the rather surprising statements that the Reverend Dr. Grant sees fit to make concerning the lady whom he was to marry.

The statement by Dr. Grant includes a statement to the effect that it was he and not Mrs. Lydig who broke the engagement.

Also, complaining that his body is ill but that his spirit is "not sick," Dr. Grant allows the public to know that he needs money badly. He attributes his poverty, in part, to the fact that Mrs. Lydig failed to pay her part of the cost of certain alterations on his, Dr. Grant's country house—the alterations costing twenty or thirty thousand dollars.

There should be the greatest sympathy for a clergyman with pernicious anaemia, whose body is sick and whose spirit is fighting, and you should judge him kindly.

But contemplating the Reverend gentleman who blames his former fiancee for not helping to pay the alterations on his house, and, in defiance of the usual custom, announces that he broke their engagement, you can't help feeling admiration for the lady, Mrs. Lydig, in her silence.

It will comfort the admirers of Dr. Grant to learn that upon leaving the hospital he ate very heartily of a Thanksgiving dinner at the Brevoort Hotel, and that, in spite of poverty, he was able to go home by motor forty miles.

When his physical health comes back and gives his spirit a healthier abode, Dr. Grant doubtless will regret and explain the statements concerning the lady he was to have married.

Good for the Senate

It is not to be regretted that the Senate followed its usual custom in the matter of Senator Butler's committee assignments.

In treating the chairman of the National Republican Committee the same as if he were a new and unheralded Senator, the Senate increases its own prestige.

It presents this great law-making body as an organism intent on doing business according to time-honored methods, and not concerned with the payment of campaign services.

It emphasizes the constitutional independence of each department of the government, and, what is almost as important, the independence of the Senate and its traditions from the highest claims of partisanship.

A WIFE'S MEDITATIONS

By HELEN ROWLAND

It would be a simple thing to please a man, if only his theories and ideals were not SO different from his habits and complexes.

* * *

Of course a man admires dignity and reserve in a woman, but the one he goes to see oftenest is the one who likes a noble St. Bernard or a stately grey hound than like a playful fox-terrier puppy, who frisks gleefully around him and makes him feel WELCOMED.

Helen Rowland

* * *

A man admires a capable woman who can mend his pockets, put up a wonderful picnic lunch, drive the car and paint the furniture—but he generally wakes up to find himself engaged to the girl who holds a match to his cigar with a little useless white hand.

* * *

He admires a beautiful groomed woman, whose dress and apartment are always in perfect order; but when he wants to spend a restful evening, he seeks out some informal woman, who will let him lounge on the sofa cushions, and not be too particular about where he puts his feet, or his cigar ashes, or whether it musses her marcel.

* * *

He may admire a fearless, athletic woman, who can enjoy his sports with him, stand the rain and tramp along beside him unwearied.

* * *

But, somehow, he always gets entangled with the delicate, frivolous little thing, who wears high heels and georgette crepe, asks foolish questions, doesn't listen to his answers, and "needs protection."

* * *

Every man admires honesty in a woman. Yet, the one he spends his time and money on usually breaks her dates with sweet apologies, keeps him waiting—and guessing—and raises contrite eyes when he accuses her of flirting with another man.

* * *

A man admires modesty and simplicity in a woman, but the one he takes out on Saturday evenings wears revealing gowns and lip rouge and looks as though she MIGHT be kissed on the way home.

* * *

A man admires a brilliant and witty woman—but the one he takes to dinner is the kind who agrees with all his opinions, laughs at his feeblest jokes and asks him to "tell it again."

* * *

Every man admires pride in a woman; but the one he goes BACK to is the woman who can smile and forgive when he offers a weak apology, who pretends to "understand," and who LISTENS to his explanations with an indulgent ear, and a tender, relenting eye.

* * *

Oh, yes, a man's IDEALS for woman are awfully high—but they are SO adjustable! What can a poor girl do!

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

By Aline Michaelis

NOT to the joys that are far away does my longing turn, nor, for the light of a distant day does my being yearn. Ever the farthest sunbeam lies with the brightest gold; fairer the peaks of the future rise than these dull days hold. Naught of tomorrow I ask today though its promise glows lovely as light on the ocean's spray, touched with the sunset's rose. Leaving tomorrow's rainbow mist till tomorrow's dawn, waiting its pearl and amethyst till the night is gone, still down my pathway the whole day long gladly I go and content, finding each hour my need of song, sunshine and shadow blent. While the Now is the morrow's lure, bright though its gleam may be; joys that are mine for today are sure; this is enough for me! Days that are white with the dogwood's bloom, bright with the Summer's glow, Autumn days with the smoke's gray plume, Winter days of snow . . . gold is the promise they hold in store. Days that lie far away; but for me, if I ask no more than the joys I have today.

Nine To Care For

Helping Hand Editor:

I am in need of dresses for my five girls, eight months, seven, nine, eleven and fourteen years of age. Also my husband needs an overcoat, 38 or 40. My husband is sickly, and with nine little ones to take care of it is pretty hard to manage. MRS. C.

Down To $3

Helping Hand Editor:

You are the only friend I have who can help me. If you don't, God alone knows what will become of us. I am without work, and all I have now is three dollars to support my wife and three children, and to make matters worse I will owe the landlord two weeks' rent Thursday. He came to me tonight and said he only will wait until then. I am twenty-seven years of age and a very skillful chauffeur and truck driver. Am also an experienced collector. Will you please help me get a job?

ALBERT P.

Grateful For Clothing

Helping Hand Editor:

I received some boxes of clothing and was so grateful for them. Not knowing the address of those who sent them, I cannot write them personally so kindly thank them for wonderful

Haverhill. MRS. W.

Husband Injured

Helping Hand Editor:

I wonder if there is some kind reader who has any used linen or pieces of any kind of cloth they don't want, as I am in great need of such. I have six lovely children, five boys, ten, eight, six, four and two, and a new baby girl one month old. My husband had his ribs fractured and has just started back to work. Thanksgiving we had nothing to speak of, but were truly thankful for what we had. I would be glad to receive any kind of clothing for the children and can make over. MRS. A. C.

Orphan Needs Clothes

Helping Hand Editor:

Would some kind reader be good enough to send a little orphan boy, seven years old, some clothes? He needs a coat and shoes badly. Also any playthings for a boy his age would be so welcome. He stays with his aunt. Please, someone, help the little fellow a bit.

MRS. McK.

Enjoyed Dinner

Helping Hand Editor:

I want to thank Mrs. W. for the beautiful Thanksgiving dinner she gave me. It was the best dinner we had for some time. She brought us everything to make us happy, and I appreciate her kindness. I am very sorry I did not get her address so I could write to her.

MRS. K. O'M.

Wants a Real Tree

Helping Hand Editor:

Are there some kind readers who can help three brothers and five sisters with some kind of toys for Christmas and try to give us some things to fix up a tree? Last year poor mother waited until someone threw away their tree after Christmas, and we picked it up and fixed it with crepe paper. HAZEL R.

Box of Toys Offered

Helping Hand Editor:

If you will please send me the address of some poor little boy I will fix up a box of used toys my little boys have and cheer his Christmas a little. I can put in a nice heavy pair of boy's shoes if the boy is only five or six, as the shoes are size 9. If you have any address in Lynn I will take them to him. Keep up the good work.

MRS. M. H.

Many thanks for your offer to make some poor little boy happy. Mrs. M. S.'s little five-year-old boy will be glad to get both the toys and shoes. She lives in East Lynn, and we are sending you her address.

Wants Use of Auto

Editor Helping Hand:

Is there some kind-hearted person owning an auto who would take me to the Rutland Veterans' Hospital to see my husband? I have a young baby and expect another very shortly, so I don't feel I can afford to take a trip like that on the cars. It will be the only chance I have of seeing him. Will it

WHAT CONSTITUTES A PERFECT HOST

By DR. FRANK CRANE

WHAT is a perfect host?

That is, how can a man be described who is best qualified to take one person, especially a woman, to dinner?

He must be one who knows where one would like to dine, or can at least make a proper suggestion. He can always secure a table at the proper dining place. He must realize that, in spite of being a woman, she may still have an appreciation of good cooking. He is always pleasant to the waiter without familiarity.

He notices his companion's frock.

He assumes that one has at least primitive intelligence.

He can indulge in small talk pleasantly and amusingly without egotism.

He has strength of character enough to make his conversation interesting without abusing absent friends.

He is not always scanning the room in search of a prettier face.

He can always find a taxi and refrain from flirting when in it.

He does not treat his companion as a superior being nor as his inferior, but as an equal.

These are modest requirements, but they are rarely found. It is a question what kind of woman a man prefers as his guest.

Someone has said that no woman would ever admit she is hungry, and no man ever believes her.

At least a woman should manifest a reasonable appreciation of good food and should be willing to "try anything once."

She should not carry her likes and dislikes, which were acquired in Emporia, Kansas, to London or Paris. Her taste should be subject to expansion.

Most restaurants are arranged with especial attention to parties of two. It is rare to find the man and woman who can measure up to the requirements of the place.

Perhaps the greatest defect is the inability to indulge in small talk or in aseptic subjects of conversation and not be too personal.

No one likes to talk about himself or to have himself talked about, but he has no objection to discussing his neighbor's affairs in a harmless way.

The dinner should be more than a function merely for partaking of food. It should include those elements of the spirit which linger long in one's memory and make the event a perfect one.

WHEN WINTER IS THE COLDEST

By Garrett P. Serviss

Noted Astronomer and Writer on Scientific Subjects of Popular Interest

A CORRESPONDENT asks a question which appears to be perpetually puzzling to a great many people, and, since the answer involves one of the most important relations between the sun and the earth, it is here given.

This is the question: "If, as astronomers say, the cause of Winter is the low elevation of the sun, why, then, since the sun is lowest in the South about the 22d of December, the Winter solstice, does the temperature continue to fall after the sun has turned back North, and has been rising higher for several weeks?

I should think it would be the coldest at the Winter solstice, when the sun is lowest, and its rays fall the most obliquely."

Here is the answer: The cold of Winter is due to two causes, which act together; first, to the low angle at which the sun's rays strike the earth, causing the same quantity of heat to be spread over a much greater area, and second, to the fact that when the sun is below the equator the nights in northern hemispheres are longer than the days.

Let us take the second first. Starting from the equator, where day and night are always of equal length, no matter what the position of the poles with reference to the sun may be, you perceive that as you go north the length of night increases as compared with that of day.

At 40 degrees north latitude, which is the medium latitude of the northern United States, the difference is very evident. At the time of the Winter solstice, when the sun is 23½ degrees south of the equator, the night at 40 degrees north latitude is about four and a half hours longer than the day.

As you continue to go north when you have arrived at the Arctic Circle, within 23½ degrees of the pole, day vanishes completely, and it is all night. In the Southern Hemisphere exactly the reverse occurs, so that they have their Winter when we have our Summer.

Now, as to the second cause mentioned above. You know, no doubt, that corn stalks always grow up vertically out of the ground, whether it is a flat valley or a hillside. But a farmer will tell you that he can raise more corn on an acre of that land than on a steep hillside, even if there is no difference in the fertility of the soil.

The sun's rays are equally numerous, whether they strike the earth vertically or slopingly, but when they fall slopingly they are spread over a greater surface, and consequently their heating effect, for a given area, is less.

The combination of these two causes, as we have said, brings on the cold of Winter. It remains to explain why the cold is not greatest when the sun is lowest.

It is because the cold will accumulate—or more correctly, the relative loss of heat will grow greater—as long as more heat is radiated away at night than is accumulated by day, and this continues to be the case for about six weeks from the Winter solstice and begun to rise again toward the end of January.

Although the sun is lowest about December 22, the greatest cold of Winter ordinarily occurs about February 1; but the precise date is variable, owing to local or accidental influences. As soon as the amount of heat stored up by day equals that lost at night the temperature will begin to rise.

Exactly the same influence is at work in Summer, for the hottest weather does not occur on June 21, when the sun is highest, and when the greatest amount of heat is poured down in twenty-four hours, but about the end of July, when the earth has become thoroughly warmed, and more heat is accumulated by day than is radiated away by night.

ONCE-OVERS

PARENTS SHOULD BE THE COMPANIONS THEIR CHILDREN LIKE BEST

When you have objected to some of the things your son or your daughter is doing, doubtless you heard that the "nicest boys and girls in town do" thus and so, and "unless we are going with the crowd we get left out."

If you are facing this problem and argument, you are confronted with the same situation which has baffled many parents.

Advice, admonitions, scoldings and threats will have no effect if you have allowed your children to grow up ungoverned.

Therefore, you must adopt some other method to make them change.

It is best now to become interested in what they are thinking and doing.

It may not be easy and discouragements will be met.

Also you may have to spend more money for their entertainment, perhaps, than you have spent in the past. You may also have to give up some of your personal pleasures and change your own daily routine to do this.

But the desired results are worth all it costs you.

Children need amusement and companionship. If you cannot furnish it they are sure to seek it outside of the home, perhaps with companions whose influence may be adverse to their best interests.
